Abstract: This article is a critical analysis of the work of the American Psychological Association (APA) and the American Psychiatric Association (APA) in the area of mental health. It discusses the role of these organizations in the development of the field of psychology and the impact of their research and clinical work on the lives of individuals and society as a whole. The article also examines the ethical issues surrounding the use of psychological research and the role of psychologists in the legal system.

Notes: 1. The following study was analyzed differently as compared to the other studies as it was not a randomized trial.
