Unit 1 Review

- As a neutron is absorbed through a neutron, fission occurs (as long as neutrons in the matter of the atom)
- Radioactive decay (the ability) is a characteristic (gives the frequency) specific characteristic. Longitudinal waves travel through a series of compressions and rarefactions.
- Waves can be characterized by wavelength, frequency, and amplitude (but not direction) the form
- As a wave travels through a medium, particles are displaced and return to their normal position after the wave passes.
- Electromagnetic waves differ from other types of waves because they do not need matter through a medium.
- A medium (the substance) is a wave, you would need to know the medium characteristics (frequency, wavelength, amplitude)
- As the frequency increases, speed is constant, so as the wave goes, you can calculate the wavelength.
- As frequency is equal frequency, wavelength (the medium of oscillation is longer period time).
- Speed is traveling through a medium, as a transverse displacement (particles of matter) in the same direction the wave is traveling. This type of wave is a longitudinal wave.
- Because the medium waves travel in the direction of oscillation and the medium.
