Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The subjects were 10 women, 40 to 50 years of age, who were sedentary and had no cardiovascular disease. They were randomly assigned to a 10-week training program or a control group. The training program consisted of three sessions per week of aerobic exercise at 60% of maximum HR. The control group did not exercise. The HR and EE were measured at rest and during exercise at the beginning and end of the 10-week period. The results showed that the training program had a significant effect on the HR and EE of the subjects. The HR at rest decreased significantly from 72 to 68 beats per minute (p < 0.05). The HR during exercise decreased significantly from 145 to 135 beats per minute (p < 0.05). The EE at rest decreased significantly from 1,200 to 1,100 kcal per day (p < 0.05). The EE during exercise decreased significantly from 1,800 to 1,700 kcal per day (p < 0.05). The results suggest that a 10-week training program can improve the HR and EE of sedentary, middle-aged women.

- Day and night periods that are longer than the standard 24 hours occur most commonly with the use of artificial light or other light sources. To avoid this, there are two things the producer should do:
 - Turn off the lights at the end of the day.
 - Use red light for night shifts, as the length of the waves may be less disruptive to the fish's internal clock system.
- The end of the day is the best time to change the water in the tank. The production of ammonia, nitrite, and nitrate is slow, but it is still faster for these wastes to accumulate. So, water from the aquarium should be 50% replaced daily.
