Targeting in Social Programs Peter H. Schuck, Richard J. Zeckhauser, 2007-08-29 Should chronically disruptive students be allowed to remain in public schools Should nonagenarians receive costly medical care at taxpayer expense Who should be first in line for kidney transplants the relatively healthy or the severely ill In Targeting in Social Programs Peter H Schuck and Richard J Zeckhauser provide a rigorous framework for analyzing these and other difficult choices Many government policies seek to help unfortunate often low income individuals in other words bad draws These efforts are frequently undermined by poor targeting however In particular when two groups of bad draws bad bets and bad apples are included in social welfare programs bad policies are likely to result Many politicians and policymakers prefer to sweep this problem under the rug But the costs of this silence are high Allocating resources to bad bets and bad apples does more than waste money it also makes it harder to achieve substantive goals such as the creation of safe and effective schools And perhaps most important it erodes support for public programs on which many good bets and good apples rely By training a spotlight on these issues Schuck and Zeckhauser take a first step toward much needed reforms They dissect the challenges involved in defining bad bets and bad apples and discuss the safeguards that any classification process must provide They also examine three areas where bad apples and bad bets loom large public schools public housing and medical care and propose policy changes that could reduce the problems these two groups pose This provocative book does not offer easy answers but it raises questions that no one with an interest in policy effectiveness can afford to ignore By turns incisive and probing Bad Draws will generate vigorous debate
