Donai, Katharine Fitzharris, 2023-12-14 Audiology Review Preparing for the Praxis and Comprehensive Examinations is intended to serve as a review guide for audiology students and audiologists preparing for AuD program comprehensive examinations and the Audiology Praxis exam. The text can also serve as a resource for instructors teaching courses designed to review audiology content and prepare students for various types of formative or summative evaluations. Over 13 chapters topics related to audiology basics, diagnostics, treatment, research, and professional issues are reviewed. Unlike other Praxis study guides that lack audiology specific content and are comprised solely of review questions, this book provides a review of the main audiology content areas, case-based examples, practice questions, and a full online practice test. Section I begins with a description of test question types, then discusses strategies to select an answer, and finally discusses techniques to utilize when taking the Praxis. Section II covers the fundamentals of audiology, auditory and vestibular anatomy, physiology, and disorders, psychoacoustics, principles of sound, and audiometric instrumentation, as well as information regarding the development of speech and language in individuals with typical and atypical hearing. Section III further discusses audiological diagnostic techniques for adult and pediatric patients, vestibular testing and interpretation, and differential diagnosis of auditory and vestibular disorders. Section IV is a review of the screening and identification methods for hearing and balance disorders, industrial audiology, and treatment practices for amplification, implantable devices, as well as audiological counseling and documentation. Section V concludes the book with a review of research information on evidence-based practice and professional topics in audiology. Disclaimer: Please note that ancillary content such as the online practice test is not included as with the original print version of this book.

Neural Mechanisms of Perceptual Categorization as Precursors to Speech Perception Einat Liebenthal, Lynne E. Bernstein, 2017-05-03. Perceptual categorization is fundamental to the brain's remarkable ability to process large amounts of sensory information and efficiently recognize objects, including speech. Perceptual categorization is the neural bridge between lower-level sensory and higher-level language processing. A long line of research on the physical properties of the speech signal, as determined by the anatomy and physiology of the speech production apparatus, has led to descriptions of the acoustic information that is used in speech recognition, e.g., stop consonants, place and manner of articulation, voice onset time, aspiration. Recent research has also considered what visual cues are relevant to visual speech recognition, i.e., the visual counterparts used in lipreading or audiovisual speech perception. Much of the theoretical work on speech perception was done in the twentieth century without the benefit of neuroimaging technologies and models of neural representation. Recent progress in understanding the functional organization of sensory and association cortices based on advances in neuroimaging presents the possibility of achieving a comprehensive and far reaching account of perception in the service of language At the level of cell assemblies research in animals and humans suggests that neurons in the temporal cortex are important for encoding biological categories On the cellular level different classes of neurons interneurons and pyramidal neurons have been suggested to play differential roles in the neural computations underlying auditory and visual categorization The moment is ripe for a research topic focused on neural mechanisms mediating the emergence of speech representations including auditory visual and even somatosensory based forms Important progress can be achieved by juxtaposing within the same research topic the knowledge that currently exists the identified lacunae and the theories that can support future investigations This research topic provides a snapshot and platform for discussion of current understanding of neural mechanisms underlying the formation of perceptual categories and their relationship to language from a multidisciplinary and multisensory perspective It includes contributions reviews original research methodological developments pertaining to the neural substrates dynamics and mechanisms underlying perceptual categorization and their interaction with neural processes governing speech perception
