Hasenhuettl,Richard W. Hartel,2019-11-09 Emulsifiers also known as surfactants are often added to processed foods to improve stability texture or shelf life These additives are regulated by national agencies such as the FDA or multi national authorities such as the EEC or WHO The amphiphilic molecules function by assisting the dispersion of mutually insoluble phases and stabilizing the resulting colloids emulsions and foams Emulsifiers can interact with other food components such as carbohydrates proteins water and ions to produce complexes and mesophases These interactions may enhance or disrupt structures and affect functional properties of finished foods In dairy processing small molecule emulsifiers may displace dairy proteins from oil water and air water interfaces which affects stability and properties of the foams and emulsions In baked products emulsifiers contribute to secondary functionalities such as dough strengthening and anti staling Synthetic food emulsifiers suffer from the stigma of chemical names on a product's ingredient statement. Modern consumers are seeking products that are all natural. Fortunately, there are a number of natural ingredients that are surface active such as lecithin, milk proteins, and some protein-containing hydrocolloids. Mayonnaise, for example, is stabilized by egg yolk. This book can serve as both a guide for professionals in the food industry to provide an understanding of emulsifier functionality and a stimulus for further innovation. Students of food science will find this to be a valuable resource.

Found in Translation Nicola Yelland, Dana Frantz Bentley, 2017-11-23. Found in Translation: Connecting Reconceptualist Thinking with Early Childhood Education Practices highlights the relationships between reconceptualist theory and classroom practice. Each chapter in this edited collection considers a contemporary issue and explores its potential to disrupt the status quo and be meaningful in the lives of young children. The book pairs reconceptualist academics and practitioners to discuss how theories can be relevant in everyday educational contexts working with children who are from a wide range of cultural, ethnic, gender, language, and social orientations to enable previously unimagined ways of being, thinking, and doing in contemporary times.
