Competition Law in Developing Countries Thomas K. Cheng,2020-05-27 This book brings together perspectives of development economics and law to tackle the relationship between competition law enforcement and economic development It addresses the question of whether and how competition law enforcement helps to promote economic growth and development This question is highly pertinent for developing countries largely because many developing countries have only adopted competition law in recent years about thirty jurisdictions had in place a competition law in the early 1980s and there are now more than 130 competition law regimes across the world of which many are developing countries The book proposes a customized approach to competition law enforcement for developing countries set against the background of the academic and policy debate concerning convergence of competition law The implicit premise of convergence is that there may exist one or a few correct approaches to competition law enforcement which in most cases emanate from developed jurisdictions that are applicable to all This book rejects this assumption and argues that developing countries ought to tailor competition law enforcement to their own economic and political circumstances In particular it suggests how competition law enforcement can better incorporate development concerns without causing undue dilution of its traditional focus on protecting consumer welfare It proposes ways in which approaches to competition law enforcement need to be adjusted to reflect the special economic characteristics of developing country economies and the more limited enforcement capacity of developing country competition authorities Finally it also addresses the long running debate concerning the desirability and viability of industrial policy for developing countries The author would like to acknowledge the Research Grants Council of Hong Kong for its generous support The work in this book was fully supported by a grant from the Research Grants Council of Hong Kong Project No HKU 742412H

The OECD Observer Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development,2011

The Design of Competition Law Institutions Eleanor M Fox,Michael J Trebilcock,2012-12-20 Competition or antitrust law is national law More than 120 jurisdictions have adopted their own competition law Is there a need for convergence of the competition law systems of the world Much effort has been devoted to nudging substantive law convergence in the absence of an international law of competition But it is widely acknowledged that institutions play as great a role as substantive principles in the harmonious or dissonant application of the law This book provides the first in depth study of the institutions of antitrust It does so through a particular inquiry Do the competition systems of the world embrace substantially the same process norms Are global norms embedded in the institutional arrangements however disparate Delving deeply into their jurisdictions the contributors illuminate the inner workings of the systems and expose the process norms embedded within Case studies feature Australia New Zealand Canada Chile China Japan South Africa the USA and the European Union as well as the four leading international institutions involved in competition the World Trade Organization the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development and the International Competition Network and the introductory and synthesizing chapter by the directors of the project draws also from the new institutional arrangements of Brazil and India The book reveals that there are indeed common process norms across the very different systems thus this study is a counterpart to studies on convergence of substantive rules The synthesizing chapter observes an emerging sympathy of systems in which global process norms along with substantive norms play a critical role The book provides benchmarks for the field and suggests possibilities for future development when the norms are embraced in aspiration but not yet in practice It offers insights for all interested in competition law and global governance
