

River Nile

The Nile is a major river that flows through north-east Africa. Measuring around 6695km, it is often considered to be the longest river in the world although some scientists believe the Amazon river in South America to be longer.

Location

The Nile flows northwards through, or along the borders of, 11 African countries. These are Burundi, Rwanda, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Tanzania, Uganda, Kenya, Ethiopia, South Sudan, Sudan, Eritrea and Egypt. The mouth of the Nile flows out into the Mediterranean Sea.

Wildlife and Importance

The Nile has been a life source for many people over thousands of years. The ancient Egyptians are known to have depended on the river and its banks for:

- fresh water
- food
- transportation
- fertile land for growing crops.

Almost all of the major cultural and historical sites of ancient Egypt were located close to the banks of the Nile.

Wildlife

The river and banks are home to a wide variety of wildlife including:

- Nile crocodiles
- Hippopotamuses
- turtles
- snakes
- fish
- birds

Word of the Day

The name 'Nile' is derived from the Greek word 'Neilos' which means valley or river valley.

Environment

Around 95% of Egyptians live within a few miles of the river bank and millions of tourists visit every year. The large number of people, combined with tourist cruise ships and changes to agricultural practices are causing a major river pollution problem. There are programmes being put in place by the United Nations and other local organisations to try and protect the Nile delta and communities living there.
