

Leisure Reflections

Robert A. Stebbins

Professor Robert A. Stebbins, with over 35 years in leisure studies, has pioneered the ideas of 'serious leisure', 'casual leisure', 'project-based leisure' and 'optimal leisure'. He is currently Faculty Professor in the Department of Sociology at the University of Calgary. Author of 34 books and monographs in several areas of social science, his most important recent works bearing on these ideas include: Amateurs, Professionals, and Serious Leisure (McGill-Queen's University Press, 1992); After Work: The Search for an Optimal Leisure Lifestyle (Detselig, 1998); New Directions in the Theory and Research of Serious Leisure (Edwin Mellen, 2001); The Organizational Basis of Leisure Participation: A Motivational Explanation (Venture, 2002); Volunteering as Leisure/Leisure as Volunteering (CASS, 2004, edited with M. Graham); and Between Work and Leisure (Transaction, 2004). Forthcoming books include Challenging Mountain Nature (Detselig) and A Dictionary of Nonprofit Terms and Concepts (Indiana University Press, with D.H. Smith and M. Dover). He was elected Fellow of the Academy of Leisure Sciences in 1996 and, in 1999, elected Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada; and has been a member of LSA since 1995.

Stebbins's main leisure interests lie in amateur music, where he is a jazz and classical double bassist, and in various outdoor hobbyist pursuits, notably cross-country skiing, snowshoeing, and hiking and mountain scrambling (hiking to mountain tops). He is also an active volunteer in the Calgary French community, primarily as Past-President of the Société d'accueil francophone (an organization that helps French-speaking immigrants settle in Calgary). And, to be sure, casual leisure counts as well. For Stebbins it consists mainly of evening conversations with friends and family and dining out in Calgary's restaurants.

Social Entrepreneurship as Work and Leisure

If articles in the mass print media and on some Internet websites are any indication, social entrepreneurship has become something of a modern-day hit among morally conscious people itching to solve a particular social problem and possibly make money in the process. Social entrepreneurship is an altruistic undertaking. These entrepreneurs execute innovative solutions to what they define as social problems, be they local, national, or international. In social entrepreneurship people use the principles of enterprise to foster social change, which they do by establishing and managing a venture. Some of them set up small, medium, or large non-profit groups designed to ameliorate a difficult situation threatening certain people, flora, or fauna or a certain aspect of the environment, if not a combination of these. Others are profit-seekers. They work to establish a money-making enterprise that also improves such a situation in one of these four areas.

Whether starting and running a non-profit or a for-profit social enterprise, these entrepreneurs are commonly practically oriented people. They have a mission, typically one that is powerfully felt, and they want action leading to solution of the problem targeted in that mission. But what, in scientific terms, are these people doing? How can we explain why some people devote huge amounts of time and sometimes personal funds to solving a social problem? One might argue that in the case of the for-profit entrepreneurs the answer is obvious: they want to make money. But, when profit is the motive, nearly all social enterprises are substantially risky ventures. If you want to be sure to make even a modest amount of money, there are far more secure businesses than this kind.

In other words we must look beyond the profit motive for a more profound explanation of social entrepreneurship. The serious leisure perspective offers a two-pronged explanation that meets this requirement. The crux of the argument that follows is that pursuit of non-profit entrepreneurship is a serious leisure undertaking of the career volunteer kind, whereas pursuit of for-profit entrepreneurship is a kind of devotee work. What, in detail, does this mean?

The Career Volunteer as Social Entrepreneur

Career volunteering is one of three types of serious leisure. Serious leisure is the systematic pursuit of an amateur, hobbyist, or volunteer activity that people find so substantial, interesting, and fulfilling that, in the typical case, they launch themselves on a (leisure) career centered on acquiring and expressing a combination of its special skills, knowledge, and experience. It takes considerable commitment to stay with an activity like developing a social enterprise, and to stay long enough to acquire the special skills, knowledge, and experience needed to succeed. A sense of career emerges from acquiring these skills, knowledge, and so on. The serious leisure that social entrepreneurs pursue is that of the volunteer.

A volunteer is someone who offers un-coerced altruistic help either formally or informally with no or, at most, token pay for the benefit of both the target of benefits (beneficiaries of the work of the enterprise who are not part of the volunteer's family) and the volunteer. Among the benefits volunteers commonly gain are the

Serious Leisure Perspective Robert A. Stebbins,2020-07-25 The Serious Leisure Perspective SLP is a theoretic framework developed by Robert A Stebbins in 1973 that brings together three main forms of leisure known as serious leisure casual leisure and project based leisure The SLP has evolved considerably since 1973 and this textbook provides a synthesis of the many concepts and propositions as well as the data supporting them In this overview Stebbins organizes the entire framework along conceptual lines with careful attention to level of empirical support and validation of each concept presenting an up to date version of the SLP that allows interested students and researchers of social psychology sociology and leisure studies to pinpoint exact elements of the theory the empirical base and its application The Idea of Leisure

Robert A. Stebbins,2011-12-31 A range of thinkers in philosophy religion and the social sciences have argued that thanks to science technology and the organization of society the human condition has improved and will continue to do so People are becoming progressively happier and enjoying an ever improving quality of life they say mostly because they are putting their skills and reason to work The Idea of Leisure is based on the assumption that leisure also fits into the social order and it provides a singular vector by which to measure progress even though it is rarely mentioned in writings about the idea of progress Robert A Stebbins believes that leisure fosters positive development in both the individual and community Progress through free time activity may sometimes be hard to grasp because of the all too common manifestations of deviant behavior from schoolyard bullying to date rape Despite these examples the vast majority of leisure activities often have profound positive consequences for participants and society Stebbins makes a solid case for linking leisure with progress Although leisure has huge importance for humanity observations about the idea of leisure as part of the idea of progress have been sporadic It is no accident that the World Leisure Organization promotes the motto Leisure integral to social cultural and economic development Nor is it an accident that Article 24 of the United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights declares that Everyone has the right to rest and leisure including reasonable limitation of working hours and periodic holidays with pay For whole nations to find satisfaction and self fulfillment based on leisure would be a true sign of progress Stebbins book offers original insight into this basic human requirement Careers in Serious Leisure R. Stebbins,2014-10-02 Using the concept of fulfilment and the framework of the serious leisure perspective this book examines the signposts marking the fulfilment career This career begins with an interest in a serious pursuit leading to an efflorescence many years later in amateurism hobbyism volunteering or devotee work and ultimately deeper fulfilment

Personal Decisions in the Public Square Robert A. Stebbins,2009 Explores how when and why people pursue those things in life that they desire the things they do to make their existence attractive and worth living Stebbins calls this Positive Sociology New Directions in the Theory and Research of Serious Leisure Robert A. Stebbins,2001 This study pulls together the findings of Dr Stebbins's research programme on leisure It presents his basic theory on serious leisure as well as his analysis of casual leisure identifying deviant leisure as falling into either group Leisure and the Motive to Volunteer: Theories of Serious, Casual, and Project-Based Leisure Robert A. Stebbins,2015-10-29 Volunteering and its nonprofit organizations have commonly been analyzed in economic terms with volunteering being referred to as unpaid productive work This economic definition has been around far longer than that of volunteering conceived of as leisure which is discussed as the volitional definition By means of a lengthy literature review this book sets out the theoretical and empirical contributions of the serious leisure perspective to understanding volunteer motivation This second approach began more than 40 years ago It answers the key motivational question of why people engage in unpaid productive work laborious or not Since in this conception payment in cash or in kind is not an incentive to perform such work what encourages people to volunteer The serious leisure perspective unlike mainstream economics can shed considerable light on this question

Leisure and Consumption R. Stebbins,2009-08-28 The study of consumption has never seriously examined the role of leisure This ambitious agenda setting study provides the most in depth examination of the relationship between the two to date drawing on the serious leisure perspective and outlining a new conceptual framework for analyzing consumption for leisure Project-Based Leisure Robert A. Stebbins,2023-12-22 This short book discusses the relatively new concept of project based leisure in leisure research and relates it to individual and community well being and quality of life The book defines PBL as a short term reasonably complicated one off or occasional though infrequent creative undertaking carried out in free time or time free of disagreeable obligation Such leisure requires considerable planning effort and sometimes skill or knowledge The book discusses how PBL contributes to subjective well being though doing so more modestly than serious leisure and occupational devotion The book surveys existing field research of the author's own and other studies and provides original insights on how PBL activities can be used to generate community involvement and subjective well being

The Chicago School Diaspora Jacqueline Low,Gary Bowden,2013-12-01 When the University of Chicago was founded in 1892 it established the first sociology department in the United States The department grew rapidly in reputation and influence and by the 1920s graduates of its program were heading newly formed sociology programs across the country and determining the direction of the discipline and its future research. Their way of thinking about social relations revolutionized the social sciences by emphasizing an empirical approach to research instead of the more philosophical armchair perspective that previously prevailed in American sociology. The Chicago School Diaspora presents work by Canadian and international scholars who identify with what they understand as the Chicago School tradition. Broadly speaking, many of the scholars affiliated with sociology at Chicago understood human behaviour to be determined by social structures and environmental factors rather than personal and biological characteristics. Contributors highlight key thinkers and epistemological issues associated with the Chicago School as well as contemporary empirical research. Offering innovative theoretical explanations for the diversity and breadth of its scholarly traditions, The Chicago School Diaspora offers a fresh approach to ideas, topics, and approaches associated with the origins of North American sociology. Between Work and Leisure Robert A. Stebbins,2017-09-08 Occupational devotion as defined by Robert A Stebbins is a strong and positive attachment to a form of self enhancing work where the sense of achievement is high and the core activity or set of tasks is endowed with such intense appeal that the line between work and leisure is virtually erased This volume examines conditions that attract people to their work in this profound way and the many exceptional values and intrinsic rewards they realize there The author sets out by discussing people who are devoted to their occupations and describes the kinds of occupations in which such people are found the nature of their commitment to their work and the kind of values they strive to realize through work Stebbins frames occupational devotion in four broad social contexts history religion work and leisure then considers the further subdivisions of gender social class and social character The heart of the book uses research findings on leisure to develop a powerful critique of the workaholic model Stebbins shows instead that deeply felt worker enthusiasm is devoid of addictive or coerced behavior Stebbins also explores the role of money How important is it What happens when money becomes a major if not dominant value as has happened for example in the realm of professional sports Finally he examines the social implications of the compatibility of work and serious leisure using exploratory research to identify their shared motivational factors Between Work and Leisure aims to debunk the prevailing myth that work and leisure are wholly separate and often as not mutually antagonistic spheres of life Stebbins shows that a close relationship between leisure and work offers the opportunity for people to find joy in work just as they do in leisure This volume will be of interest to those interested in work and occupations as well as those interested in the quality of their own lives
