

7th Grade Social Studies DBQ Guidelines

1. Your essay must include the following:

a. Introductory paragraph

- i. Hook (catch the reader's attention) - Keep this statement broad.
- ii. Line (historical context) - Use the context provided to you by the essay question. This statement should be more narrow than your hook.
- iii. Sinker (thesis statement—state what the essay is about, what your position in the essay will be, or what you will prove.) This statement should be the most specific of your introductory paragraph. This is not an opinion, so do not use the word "I."

- You introduction does not need to be only 3 sentences. You may need multiple sentences for each part, but be careful not to answer the question in this introductory paragraph.

*Think of your introduction as a reverse triangle, moving from a broad statement to a specific statement.

*Body paragraphs provide the reader with answer to the essay. This is the meat of your essay. Each body paragraph will address a different part of the essay. For example, if the question asks you to give advantages and disadvantages of a historic event, one body paragraph will address the advantages and the second will address the disadvantages.

b. Body paragraph 1

- i. must have a solid topic sentence - Every piece of information in this body paragraph should be related to the topic sentence.
- ii. must include outside information
- iii. must include inside information (documents)

c. Body paragraph 2

- i. must have a solid topic sentence
- ii. must include outside information

Teaching History with Big Ideas S. G. Grant, Jill M. Gradwell, 2010-07-16 In the case studies that make up the bulk of this book middle and high school history teachers describe the decisions and plans and the problems and possibilities they encountered as they ratcheted up their instruction through the use of big ideas Framing a teaching unit around a question such as Why don t we know anything about Africa offers both teacher and students opportunities to explore historical actors ideas and events in ways both rich and engaging Such an approach exemplifies the construct of ambitious teaching whereby teachers demonstrate their ability to marry their deep knowledge of subject matter students and the school context in ways that fundamentally challenge the claim that history is boring

Teaching History for the Common Good Keith C. Barton,Linda S. Levstik,2004-07-13 In Teaching History for the Common Good Barton and Levstik present a clear overview of competing ideas among educators historians politicians and the public about the nature and purpose of teaching history and they evaluate these debates in light of current research on students historical thinking In many cases disagreements about what should be taught to the nation s children and how it should be presented reflect fundamental differences that will not easily be resolved A central premise of this book though is that systematic theory and research can play an important role in such debates by providing evidence of how students think how their ideas interact with the information they encounter both in school and out and how these ideas differ across contexts Such evidence is needed as an alternative to the untested assumptions that plague so many discussions of history education The authors review research on students historical thinking and set it in the theoretical context of mediated action an approach that calls attention to the concrete actions that people undertake the human agents responsible for such actions the cultural tools that aid and constrain them their purposes and their social contexts They explain how this theory allows educators to address the breadth of practices settings purposes and tools that influence students developing understanding of the past as well as how it provides an alternative to the academic discipline of history as a way of making decisions about teaching and learning the subject in schools Beyond simply describing the factors that influence students thinking Barton and Levstik evaluate their implications for historical understanding and civic engagement They base these evaluations not on the disciplinary study of history but on the purpose of social education preparing students for participation in a pluralist democracy Their ultimate concern is how history can help citizens engage in collaboration toward the common good In
