In the article, "You Can Grow Your Intelligence," Larry Blackwell concludes that intelligence is not something you are born with, but instead everyone has the ability to grow a stronger brain. To introduce this idea, Blackwell uses the analogy of strengthening and building muscles to illustrate how an individual can increase his/her intelligence. Next, by studying the brains of both animals and young children, Blackwell was able to conclude that environment and experience play critical roles in brain development. In conclusion, Blackwell believes just like athletes exercise and practice to build their skills, so should everyone who wants to increase their intelligence.
