Research Guide: Assessing Sources

Evaluating the credibility and value of a source can be very difficult, particularly when doing research using the Internet. Below are some basic guidelines to help you select reliable sources and use them to learn accurate information about a given subject.

Characteristics of Reliable Sources

Authority: Who is sponsoring the information? The URL can provide information about the origin of the source. The following are examples of how you can determine the type of organization that is sponsoring the content for a specific website.

Site ending in . . .

.edu are usually educational institutions and generally a good source of information.

.gov are government entities and usually good sources for statistical information.

.org are typically non-profit organizations often set up as a public service. Be on the lookout for political agendas and biases.

Example: If you are looking for information about gun control, there may be sites such as gun.com that are not about gun ownership, laws, etc. Sites affiliated with gun rights (such as gun ownership) will probably be listed as .org, such as www.gunowners.org or www.gunrights.org.

Flags

While researching, there are usually red flags that are a general rule should not be used for conducting research.

Online resources or journals

These articles often contain a detailed bibliography and list specific sources as evidence for claims and statistics.

Online news sources

Usually every news story and article news outlet has an online version in its local edition. It is important to realize that while they do provide news, they are also governed by the circumstances involved and may present some information that is opinion vs. fact-based.

Television/news video news broadcasts

When viewing video keep in mind that if it is not from a source that can be accurately documented with images, dates, and key information like who, what, when, where, why and how, then the source may not be credible.

Core Literacy Proficiencies program is an integrated set of English Language Arts Literacy units spanning grades 6-12 that provide student centered instruction on a set of literacy proficiencies at the heart of the Common Core State Standards (CCSS): Reading Closely for Textual Details, Making Evidence Based Claims, Making Evidence Based Claims about Literary Technique, Grades 9-12 Researching to Deepen Understanding, Building Evidence Based Arguments. The program approaches literacy through the development of knowledge, literacy skills and academic habits. Throughout the activities students develop their literacy along these three paths in an integrated, engaging and empowering way. Knowledge: The texts and topics students encounter in the program have been carefully selected to expose them to rich and varied ideas and perspectives of cultural significance. These texts not only equip students with key ideas for participating knowledgeably in the important discussions of our time but also contain the complexity of expression necessary for developing college and career ready literacy skills. Literacy Skills: The program articulates and targets instruction and assessment on twenty CCSS aligned literacy skills ranging from making inferences to reflecting critically. Students focus on this set of twenty skills throughout the year and program continually applying them in new and more sophisticated ways. Academic Habits: The program articulates twelve academic habits for students to develop, apply and extend as they progress through the sequence of instruction. Instructional notes allow teachers to introduce and discuss academic habits such as preparing and completing tasks that are essential to students' success in the classroom. The program materials include a comprehensive set of instructional sequences, teacher notes, handouts, assessments, rubrics and graphic organizers designed to support students with a diversity of educational experiences and needs. The integrated assessment system centered around the literacy skills and academic habits allows for the coherent evaluation of student literacy development over the course of the year and vertically across all grade levels.
