social activity that in the United States alone involves 7.5 million people. Alcoholics Anonymous by itself enrolls huge numbers of people and has an enormous impact on the professional treatment system for alcoholics. In the mental health field a vigorous consumer and family movement including groups such as the National Alliance for the Mentally Ill and National Depressive and Manic Depressive Association involves hundreds of thousands of members and has caught the attention of the professional system. Understanding the Self Help Organization provides detailed comprehensive coverage of this phenomenon. This comprehensive volume focuses attention on three critical areas: public policy and self help participation particularly by minorities in self help and explanatory frameworks. Powell concludes this extraordinary volume with six chapters of important findings and case studies within self help activities. Timely and provocative. Understanding the Self Help Organization is essential reading for researchers, professionals, scholars and students in the fields of counseling, psychology, organization studies, psychology and social work.

Self-Help Groups for Parents of Children with Intractable Diseases Tomofumi Oka, 2003-09. The purpose of this dissertation is to examine the organisational problems and in particular the leadership problems of self help groups in Japan for parents whose children have intractable diseases. Since 1993 I have been involved with these parent groups and have conducted three sorts of qualitative interview: thirteen informal conversational interviews, four focus group interviews and fourteen guided interviews involving the members of twenty one parent groups. Part of the research was carried out as participatory action research in which a research team was formed and authorised by the parent groups. My findings have shown that the groups' most serious problems lay not outside their groups but within, with the shortage of suitable leaders who volunteered in the activities. Three different sorts of account were given concerning the leadership shortage. They included justification, accusation and exposure. The participants claimed that taking care of ill children caused the leadership shortage; selfish members created it; or the determination of older leaders to remain at the helm prevented new members from becoming leaders. Cognitive maps have been drawn of these situations. I have explained the theories behind the free rider and social loafing problems and the leadership traps confronting the parent groups and have applied attribution theory to the results. I have discussed the practicality of consultation for group leaders and argued that organisational socialisation should be activated in the parent groups while propounding the island within a lake model of parent groups. Methodologically I have discussed social research within Japanese culture and the ethical issues pertinent to participatory action research.
