Lawless,2018-05-30 Winner of the 2019 Chicago Folklore Prize In 2011 the Midwest suffered devastating floods Due to the flooding the US Army Corps of Engineers activated the Birds Point New Madrid Floodway one of the flood prevention mechanisms of the Mississippi Rivers and Tributaries Project This levee breach was intended to divert water in order to save the town of Cairo Illinois but in the process it completely destroyed the small African American town of Pinhook Missouri In When They Blew the Levee Race Politics and Community in Pinhook Missouri authors David Todd Lawrence and Elaine J Lawless examine two conflicting narratives about the flood one promoted by the Corps of Engineers that boasts the success of the levee breach and the flood diversion and the other gleaned from displaced Pinhook residents who in oral narratives tell a different story of neglect and indifference on the part of government officials Receiving inadequate warning and no evacuation assistance during the breach residents lost everything Still after more than six years displaced Pinhook residents have yet to receive restitution and funding for relocation and reconstruction of their town The authors research traces a long history of discrimination and neglect of the rights of the Pinhook community beginning with their migration from the Deep South to southeast Missouri through purchasing and farming the land and up to the Birds Point levee breach nearly eighty years later. The residents' stories relate what it has been like to be dispersed in other small towns living with relatives and friends while trying to negotiate the bureaucracy surrounding Federal Emergency Management Agency and State Emergency Management Agency assistance programs. Ultimately the stories of displaced citizens of Pinhook reveal a strong African American community whose bonds were developed over time and through shared traditions, a community persisting despite extremely difficult circumstances.

An Economic Analysis of Bilateral Investment Treaties Jan Peter Sasse, 2011-03-02 Bilateral Investment Treaties (BITs) are an important instrument for the protection of foreign direct investment (FDI). However, compared to international trade law, international investment law has so far received only little research attention from an economic point of view. By applying a law and economics approach, Jan Peter Sasse provides a systematic analysis of the way BITs function. He explains why BITs are more than just a signal, how they relate to institutional competition as well as to institutional quality, and why transparency in international investment arbitration is hard to achieve and may even be detrimental.
