Sketches in general terms the impact of the media, peers and family on a young person's health	2
Provides some relevant information about the impact of the media, peers and family on a young person's health	1

Syllabus area(s):

- Perceptions of health:
 - Impact of the media, family and peers

Answer points:

- The media, family and peers all exert a strong influence on the ideas that people form about what is good health and the value they place upon various aspects of health.
- The media plays a significant role in developing the health literacy skills of young people, whether that be through news stories about alcohol fuelled violence, or advertisements about skin cancer. The media helps to not only raise awareness, but to increase understanding about the health issues.
- Our peers are the group most likely to influence our ideas, promote health behaviours and provide support. When group members share similar ideas about what good health means and place comparable value on the importance of good health, it is easier for the individual to behave in ways that will enhance their health and wellbeing. For example, when young people recognise that the involvement in team sports is good for our physical health as well as a great opportunity to make social connections, young people are more likely to engage in these positive health behaviours.
- The family has a significant influence in the lives of most young people. The ideas they communicate about what health means and the values they convey about the importance of good health have a strong effect on the perceptions that we develop. For example, a belief that healthy food intake is important for good health is likely to see parents encourage their children to eat foods that follow the guide to healthy eating and they will support this belief by providing healthy meals and snacks for their children. The values and attitudes instilled in us by our parents play an important part in the development of our own perceptions of health.
