Abstract. Mobile Internet is a fast growing, dynamic field, and has wide-ranging application prospects. Electronic commerce is an important application of mobile Internet and it is increasingly changing people's way of life in the information era. For the present, electronic commerce business is confronted with such challenges as homogeneous profit pattern, customer churn, tenuous loyalty, single channel and so on. Compared to traditional electronic commerce, mobile electronic commerce has incomparable advantages in location, urgency and anytime, anywhere access. On the foundation of association rules in data mining, the architecture of cell phone photograph data mining system and recommendation system model is totally researched. It used the association rule mining algorithm to build a cell phone photograph data mining system model. It is very effective for cell phone photograph data mining problem in mobile electronic commerce.

Introduction

Image is the core carrier of commodity information in e-commerce, so with the development of mobile electronic commerce, more and more users hope that through the mobile phone camera can quickly search the corresponding commodity. For example, when the user sees a like bag in the street, she very much hope that through the mobile phone will be the bag photo shoot down, and quickly in the online search to the package price and related information. Although intelligent mobile phone usability and performance have been greatly improved, but there is always one of the biggest weaknesses, that is the keyboard is too small, the input is not convenient.

Mobile phone search is still in the immature stage, there are some problems to be solved. International is mainly studied in the field of Google, and released goggles. Discovered through the use of the mobile phone, camera system has better retrieval accuracy for some landmarks can, for landscape painting like no specific target image, similar accuracy is higher, but the effect for the specific product search is very poor.

The characteristics of mobile commerce

Compared with the traditional e-commerce, mobile e-commerce has the following characteristics:

(1) More open, inclusive. Mobile e-commerce because access wireless, so anyone is easier to enter the world of the Internet, so that the network extends broader, more open; at the same time, the network virtual functions with more realistic, which is more inclusive.

(2) is ubiquitous, whenever and wherever possible. The biggest characteristic of mobile e-commerce is "free" and "personalized". The traditional e-commerce has made people feel the network brings convenience and happiness, but its limitation is that it must be wired access, mobile e-commerce could make up for the deficiency of traditional electronic commerce, can let people whenever and wherever possible checkout, booking or shopping, feel the unique business experience.

(3) The customized service. The mobile phone can be connected and can be positioned higher than the PC machine, the mobile commerce producers can better play to the initiative, providing customized services for different customer.
