

The image shows the interior of a modern building with a high ceiling made of large, square, perforated metal panels. Several white, cylindrical pendant lights hang from the ceiling. A rectangular air vent is visible on the ceiling. The wall is made of large, light-colored stone tiles. A sign on the wall reads "Gold Coast Disaster and Emergency Management Centre". To the right, there is a glass door leading to another room.

Paramedics And Disaster Management At Unisa:

Operational Templates and Guidance for Ems Mass Incident Deployment U.S. Department of Homeland Security, Federal Emergency Management Agency, U.S. Fire Administration, 2013-11 Emergency Medical Services EMS agencies regardless of service delivery model have sought guidance on how to better integrate their emergency preparedness and response activities into similar processes occurring at the local regional State tribal and Federal levels The primary purpose of this project is to begin the process of providing that guidance as it relates to mass care incident deployment The World Bank reported in 2005 that on aggregate the reported number of natural disasters worldwide has been rapidly increasing from fewer than 100 in 1975 to more than 400 in 2005 Terrorism pandemic surge and natural disasters have had a major impact on the science of planning for and responding to mass care incidents and remain a significant threat to the homeland From the attacks of September 11th 2001 the subsequent use of anthrax as a biological weapon to the more recent surge concerns following the outbreak of H1N1 influenza EMS have a real and immediate need for integration with the emergency management process and to coordinate efforts with partners across the spectrum of the response community The barriers identified from the literature review and interviews with national EMS leadership include lack of access to emergency preparedness grant funding underrepresentation on local regional and State level planning committees and lack of systematic mandatory inclusion of all EMS provider types in State regional and local emergency plans In December 2004 New York University's Center for Catastrophe Preparedness and Response held a national roundtable that included experts from major organizations representing the EMS system as a whole The report from that meeting concluded that EMS providers such as fire departments and hospital based commercial and air ambulance services ensure that patients receive the medical care they need during a terrorist attack While EMS personnel including Emergency Medical Technicians and paramedics represent roughly one third of traditional first responders which also include law enforcement and fire service personnel the EMS system receives only four percent of first responder funding If EMS personnel are not prepared for a terrorist attack their ability to provide medical care and transport to victims of an attack will be compromised There will be an inadequate medical first response In 2007 the Institute of Medicine in its landmark report Emergency Medical Services at the Crossroads issued a recommendation that stated The Department of Health and Human Services DHHS the Department of Homeland Security and the States should elevate emergency and trauma care to a position of parity with other public safety entities in disaster planning and operations Since the time of these reports Federal progress to address these issues has included the creation of the Office of Health Affairs OHA within the Department of Homeland Security DHS the creation of the Emergency Care Coordination Center ECCC within HHS and the creation of the Federal Interagency Committee on EMS FICEMS Preparedness Committee In an effort to increase the level of preparedness among EMS agencies the National Emergency Medical Services Management Association NEMSMA approached the DHS and OHA to engage them in a partnership that would provide a greater understanding of the shortfalls in EMS emergency preparedness and provide resources to fill those gaps The primary objective of this project is to understand model policies and practices across a spectrum of disciplines and provider types that will lead to a better prepared EMS deployment to mass care incidents This project should serve as a foundation for further development of EMS specific policies and templates that improve EMS readiness to manage the full spectrum of hazards that face their communities Ciottone's Disaster Medicine Gregory R. Knowledge Base of Disaster Management Core Competencies of Australian Paramedics Peter D Horrocks, 2017

INTRODUCTION Evidence based training and curriculum are seen as vital if we are to be successful in preparing paramedics for an effective disaster response The creation of broadly recognized standard core competencies to support development of disaster response education and training courses for general health care providers and specific health care professionals will help to ensure that medical personnel are truly prepared to care for victims of mass casualty events 1 AIM To identify current Australian operational paramedicu 2019s specific disaster management education and knowledge as it relates to disaster management core competencies identified throughout the literature and the frequency of measures techniques which these paramedics use to maintain competency and currency METHOD Paramedics from all states of Australia were invited to complete an anonymous online survey Two professional bodies distributed the survey via social media and a major ambulance service was surveyed via email RESULTS The study population includes 130 respondents who self identified as a currently practicing Australian paramedic Paramedics from all states except South Australia responded with the majority coming from Queensland Ambulance Service N 81% In terms of experience 81 54% of respondents report being qualified for greater than 5 years Initial analysis shows that despite the extensive experience of the practitioners surveyed when asked to rate from high to low their level of knowledge of specific disaster management core competencies a number of gaps exist DISCUSSION Core competencies are a defined level of expertise that is essential or fundamental to a particular job and serve to form the foundation of education training and practice for operational service delivery While more research is needed these results may help inform industry government and education providers to better understand and to more efficiently provide education and ongoing training to paramedics who are responsible for the management of disaster within the Australian community Disaster Health Management Gerard Joseph FitzGerald, Michael Tarrant, Mike Tarrant, Peter Aitken, Marie Fredriksen, 2017 25 Education training and research 26 Future challenges Index Emergency and disaster Management, 1976
