Abstract The purpose of this study was to examine the effects of a 12-week, 30-min, 3 times per week, low-impact aerobically and resistance training program on the physical fitness and health-related quality of life of older adults. The study was a randomized controlled trial. The participants were randomly assigned to either the exercise or control group. The exercise group performed a 12-week, 30-min, 3 times per week, low-impact aerobically and resistance training program. The control group performed a 12-week, 30-min, 3 times per week, low-impact aerobically and resistance training program. The results showed that the exercise group had significantly higher levels of physical fitness and health-related quality of life than the control group.
