Composing Social Identity in Written Language Donald L. Rubin, 2013-09-13 This volume constitutes a unique contribution to the literature on literacy and culture in several respects It links together aspects of social variation that have not often been thus juxtaposed ethnicity nationality gender and participant role relations The unifying theme of this collection of papers is that all of these factors are aspects of writers identities identities which are simultaneously expressed and constructed in text The topic of social identity and writing can be approached from a variety of scholarly avenues including humanistic critical and historical perspectives. The papers in the present volume make reference to and contribute to such humanistic perspectives; however, this book lies squarely within the tradition of social science. It draws primarily upon the disciplines of linguistics, discourse analysis, anthropology, social and cognitive psychology, and education studies. The constituent topics of social identity, style, and writing themselves lie at the intersections of several related fields of scholarship. Writing remains of peak interest to educators from many fields and is still a hot topic. The instructional ramifications of the particular issues addressed in this volume are of vital concern to educational systems adjusting to the realities of our multicultural society. This publication therefore should attract a substantial and diverse readership of scholars, educators, and policymakers affiliated with many fields, including applied linguistics, composition, and rhetoric, communication studies, dialect studies, discourse analysis, English composition, English language arts education, ethnic studies, language behavior, literacy, sociolinguistics, stylistics, women's studies, and writing research and instruction.
