

Petrel Geology and Modeling

From 1D petroleum systems through structural modeling, to reservoir characterization across the E&P lifecycle

APPLICATIONS

- Exploration uncertainty evaluation
- Play assessment
- Chance-of-success estimation

BENEFITS

- Streamline everyday workflows using flexible, dynamically linked 3D, section, and map canvases
- Enhance collaboration within your team
- Gain a better understanding of trends and correlations
- Incorporate new data using local model update, without disturbing the history-matched model
- Confidently estimate reserves while assessing uncertainty from all perspectives

FEATURES

- Extensive property modeling algorithms
- Enhanced characterization of depositional features identified in seismic attributes
- Stratigraphic interpretation, contouring, map editing, and structural complexity evaluation — prior to modeling
- Structural framework and volume-based modeling tools, bridging the gap between seismic interpretation and modeling
- High-quality maps rapidly updated when new data is available

The Petrel® E&P software platform offers a unique user experience, placing the focus on user productivity. The logically laid out, workflow-driven interface allows you to interact with the data directly from the 3D window and focus on your project's geological workflow. The new geology and geophysics perspective lets you move through the key geological work steps, such as stratigraphic and seismic interpretation, fractures, facies, and geocellular property modeling — right through to production simulation and well design.

The geology and geophysics perspective within the Petrel platform

Exploration geology

Acquiring the right acreage and drilling the best prospects are the central investments impacting exploration success. The Petrel platform's Exploration Geology module provides workflows to improve these decisions, from early phase exploration through to appraisal. The geoscientist can evaluate the key components of exploration uncertainty, assess plays with results connected directly to interpretations, generate prospects incorporating play level assessments and perform chance-of-success estimates.

Play and prospect evaluation using hydrocarbon generation and charge and burial history analysis combined into a play chance map.

Since results are linked to data and interpretations, you can easily reference the input geology and interpretations, get rapid updates when new data is added, and have consistent evaluations across your organization.

Mapping and well correlation

The Petrel platform enables you to generate high-quality maps at regional, or prospect scale. Vitality, if any data is modified in the project, maps are updated with minimal effort — keeping your maps live.
