Irish Potato Cookbook Eveleen Coyle, 2001-03-29 For everyone who loves a spud! The Irish Potato Cookbook will help you create exciting meals that all the family will enjoy. Cooking in America, 1840-1945 Alice L. McLean, 2006-08-30 This cookbook covers the years 1840 through 1945, a time during which American cookery underwent a full-scale revolution. Gas and electric stoves replaced hearth cookery. Milk products came from commercial dairy farms rather than the family cow. Daily meals were no longer bound by seasons and regions as canned, bottled, and eventually frozen products flooded the market, and trains began to transport produce and meat from one end of the country to the other. During two World Wars and the Great Depression, women entered the work force in unprecedented numbers, and household servants abandoned low-paying domestic jobs to work in factories. As a result of these monumental changes, American home cooking became irrevocably simplified, and cookery skills geared more toward juggling time to comb grocery store shelves for the best and most economical products than toward butchering and preserving an entire animal carcass or pickling fruits and vegetables. This cookbook reflects these changes, with each of the three chapters capturing the home cooking that typified the era. The first chapter covers the pre-industrial period 1840 to 1875, during this time home cooks knew how to broil, roast, grill, fry, and boil on an open hearth flame and its embers without getting severely injured. They also handled whole sheep.

carcasses made gelatin from boiled pigs trotters grew their own yeast and prepared their own preserves The second chapter covers 1876 through 1910 a time when rapid urbanization transformed the United States from an agrarian society into an industrial giant giving rise to food corporations such as Armour Swift Campbell s Heinz and Pillsbury The mass production and mass marketing of commercial foods began to transform home cooking meat could be purchased from a local butcher or grocery store and commercial gelatin became widely available While many cooks still made their own pickles and preserves commercial varieties multiplied From 1910 to 1945 the period covered by Chapter 3 the home cook became a full fledged consumer and the national food supply became standardized to a large extent As the industrialization of the American food supply progressed commercially produced breads pastries sauces pickles and preserves began to take over kitchen cupboards and undermine the home cooks ability to produce their own meals from scratch The recipes have been culled from some of the most popular commercial and community cookbooks of the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries Taken together the more than 300 recipes reflect the major cookbook trends of the era Suggested menus are provided for replicating entire meals

Leftovers Eleanor Barnett, 2024-03-14 A topical and richly entertaining history of food preservation and food waste in Britain from the sixteenth century kitchen to the present day In Leftovers Eleanor Barnett explores the many ingenious ways in which our ancestors sought to extend the life of food through preservation the culinary reuse of leftovers and the recycling of food scraps Embracing a broad historical lens the book spans Tudor household management the world changing inventions in food preservation of the Industrial Revolution from the tin can to artificial refrigeration the growth of public health initiatives and organised food waste collection in the Victorian era state promotion of thrifty eating during the two World Wars and the politics of food and packaging waste in the modern era of sustainability Opening a window on the everyday experiences of ordinary people in the past Leftovers reveals how factors such as religious belief class identities and gender have historically shaped attitudes towards food waste At a time when a third of the food we produce globally is wasted Leftovers links its central historical focus to humanitarian and environmental issues of urgent contemporary interest including climate change globalisation scientific advancement poverty and inequality
