

Narrative Report Format

A narrative report should contain three primary sections; the introduction, body, and conclusion.

- Introduction- the introductory paragraph should be about three to five sentences. Take this chance to write a narrative report introduction that warm-up your audience and ensure they read the entire report.
- Body- the body of the narrative report entails supportive arguments that relate to the main idea explained in the introduction. Ensure that every new concept you introduce is described in its paragraph with paragraphs of three to five sentences.
- Conclusion- the conclusion should be a summary of your report concerning the main idea indicated in the introduction.

Tips on Writing an Excellent Narrative Report

- Choose a good topic

Topic selection is aided by how good you are in writing. To select a good topic for your narrative report, ensure you read many narrative essays for inspiration. Broad reading provides you with ideas on how to organize your work and put across your points meticulously. Look for reports that your professors have assigned in the past and check out narrative essays on the internet.

- Put across a story that illustrates a specific topic

Having a theme confines you to the scope of information that you write about in your narrative report. To write a narrative report that makes sense to your audience, have a story, and analyze that story. A narrative report is about a theme where you use a personal account to illustrate that idea to the audience in an exciting manner.

- Your narrative report must fit the requirements

Narrative reports are mainly required for college admission or assignment, which means you are given a prompt to follow by the institution or the lecturer.
