Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The subjects were 12 sedentary women, 30 to 45 years of age, who were randomly selected from a telephone directory. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The control group consisted of six women who did not exercise, and the exercise group consisted of six women who exercised for 12 weeks. The exercise group was instructed to exercise for 30 minutes, three times a week, at a heart rate of 150 beats per minute. The control group was instructed to remain sedentary. The subjects were monitored for HR and EE at baseline and at 12 weeks. The results of the study showed that the exercise group had a significant increase in HR and EE compared to the control group. The exercise group's HR increased from 140 to 150 beats per minute, and their EE increased from 1,800 to 2,200 kcal per day. The control group's HR and EE remained unchanged. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the HR and EE of sedentary, middle-aged women.
