

Mariama Ba And Sindiwe Magona

1. Introduction

The critical analysis of gender probabilities in the African context is not a new venture but a significant discussion to the development of gender, cultural and feminist theorists. This study investigates the limitations to empowerment Africa women face at the hands of patriarchal societies, exacerbated by the oppression and subjugation employed by traditional, cultural and religious norms within two different African countries, that is, Senegal and South Africa. The research analyzes two novels by important women writers in African literature, Mariama Ba and Sindiwe Magona. These two dedicated women writers examine the different ways in which African patriarchy and religion broadly manifests itself regarding the position of women. Mariama Ba's novel So Long A Letter (1981) expresses the Islamic and African laws which core existed in Senegal. As Layiwola (1998: 153) state, So Long a Letter narrates, in a personal correspondence to another friend, the woes of a ... Show more content on Helpwriting.net ... As a result, patriarchal perspectives combined with women's economical dependence on men, make reaching self actualization a terrifying or challenging experience and if not impossible for most women. Thus, there is need for an understanding of the experiences that these women undergo in order to implement useful and effective interventions, which are culture sensitive. Mariama Ba's novel So Long A Letter sheds light to the need of African societies to be enabling for women who suffer at the hands patriarchy, tradition and religion which oppresses and exacerbates gender stereotypes towards them. However, some African societies as an acknowledgement of Mariama Ba's style of writing and thematic concerns are still practicing religious and traditional norms that thwart the attainment of possibilities of emancipation. Similarly Magona's

Secondary School Administration S. K. Kochhar, 1995 Basic Writing, Essays for Teachers, Researchers, and Administrators Lawrence N. Kasden, Daniel R. Hoeber, 1980 The 12 essays in this collection address the concerns of basic writing teachers and those who teach basic writing teachers The first essay discusses the characteristics of the low achieving college students who require basic writing instruction and argues for basic writing courses that are based upon a thorough understanding of students nature and needs while the second essay focuses on the composing process used by some basic writers and on the differences between this process and the composing process of more skilled writers The following four essays contain descriptions of a basic writing program at a community college the programs designed for use by the member schools of the Western North Carolina Consortium a writing laboratory and an interdisciplinary writing program at Boston University The seventh essay discusses writing assessment and recommends the use of a carefully constructed objective test of students knowledge of writing skills while the eighth essay reviews the types of tests basic writing teachers and administrators may use and the purposes of each The ninth essay discusses the training of teachers of basic writing and the tenth addresses staffing and operating peer tutoring writing centers The eleventh essay reviews research in the area of writing and the final essay provides a selected bibliography of composition and basic writing FL Handbook of Automated Scoring Duanli Yan, André A. Rupp, Peter W. Foltz, 2020-02-26 Automated scoring engines require a careful balancing of the contributions of technology NLP psychometrics artificial intelligence and the learning sciences The present handbook is evidence that the theories methodologies and underlying technology that surround automated scoring have reached maturity and that there is a growing acceptance of these technologies among experts and the public From the Foreword by Alina von Davier ACTNext Senior Vice President Handbook of Automated Scoring Theory into Practice provides a scientifically grounded overview of the key research efforts required to move automated scoring systems into operational practice It examines the field of automated scoring from the viewpoint of related scientific fields serving as its foundation the latest developments of computational methodologies utilized in automated scoring and several large scale real world applications of automated scoring for complex learning and assessment systems The book is organized into three parts that cover 1 theoretical foundations 2 operational methodologies and 3 practical illustrations each with a commentary In addition the handbook includes an introduction and synthesis chapter as well as a cross chapter glossary Training Methodology: Planning and administration National Communicable Disease Center (U.S.), 1969 Simon & Schuster Handbook for Writers Lynn Quitman Troyka, Ann B. Dobie, Emily R. Gordon, 1993 Assessment in the Second Language Writing Classroom Deborah Crusan, 2010-07 Assessment in the Second Language Writing Classroom is a teacher and prospective teacher friendly book uncomplicated by the language of statistics The book is for those who teach and assess second language writing in several different contexts the IEP the developmental writing classroom and the sheltered composition classroom In addition teachers who experience a mixed population or teach cross cultural composition will find the book a valuable resource Other books have thoroughly covered the theoretical aspects of writing assessment but none have focused as heavily as this book does on pragmatic classroom aspects of writing assessment Further no book to date has included an in depth examination of the machine scoring of writing and its effects on second language writers Crusan not only makes a compelling case for becoming knowledgeable about L2 writing assessment but offers the means to do so Her highly accessible thought provoking presentation of the conceptual and practical dimensions of writing assessment both for the classroom and on a larger scale promises to engage readers who have previously found the technical detail of other works on assessment off putting as well as those who have had no previous exposure to the study of assessment at all

Ethics and Public Administration H George Frederickson, John A. Rohr, 2015-03-04 Ethics and Public Administration refutes the arguments that administrative ethics cannot be studied in an empirical manner and that empirical analysis can deal only with the trivial issues in administrative ethics Within a theoretical perspective the authors qualify their findings and take care not to over generalise results The findings are relevant to the practice of public administration Specific areas addressed include understanding public corruption ethics as control and ethics as administration and policy
