

RESEARCH PAPERS AND REPORTS

FOR HONS, MPhil, PhD & POST-DOC STUDENTS

The below has been prepared to help all research students with the writing and organising of research papers and reports including dissertations and theses. The first four pages, to the end of Methods, are also relevant for research proposals.

What is a research paper or report, including a thesis report?¹

- Form of professional documentation and communication
- Designed so readers can extract information readily and easily
- Describes research work in sufficient detail for it to be verified (and maybe repeated or at least built off) by others
- Interprets/draws conclusions from data
- Places research questions and conclusions in context of related research work in the field

Language and style:

- Use objective language
- Avoid words/phrases with a meaning that could be misunderstood
- Avoid bias in language² – scholarly writing should be free of implied or irrelevant evaluation of a group or individuals being studied
- Ensure simplicity and clarity – ensure it is easy to follow your thinking
- Contemporary science and scholarship use the active voice as much as possible
- Use the past tense for things already done, eg, research methods, tests applied, etc.; use the present tense for things that live on, eg, the findings and conclusions drawn
- Present information in a logical order for the reader
- The quality of your written communication will influence your reader's understanding
- Follow a standard style guide – EBS and most of the social/environmental sciences worldwide use the APA Publication Manual
- For dissertations and theses being submitted in Australia, use Australian spelling and punctuation throughout; for manuscripts being submitted to a journal, follow the journal's guidelines

Research terminology:

- Use appropriate research terminology
- Define terms when first used; do not give list of definitions
- Write terms in full before using acronyms

A scholarly research paper, report or thesis has:

- An informative summary (the abstract)
- Subdivisions with headings and subheadings (two levels are quite sufficient)
- Main points made obvious
- All factual statements supported by references to peer-reviewed research or by data from this study

¹ Parts of the first four subsections have been used by permission of Dr Meloni Muir, "Practical Report Writing", School of Medical Sciences, University of Sydney.

² See the APA Publications Manual (5th edition), section 2.12, pp 61-76 for an excellent set of guidelines for avoiding unintentional bias in language.

Structure:

The structure and content of a research paper, report or thesis should be appropriate to your research topic. A classic research report, in any field, contains four basic sections (though the names and the numbers of actual sections or chapters may vary):

- Introduction (background literature review)
- Methods
- Results

Sitko,1993 In Hearing Ourselves Think cognitive process research moves from the laboratory to the college classroom where its rich research tradition continues and an important new set of instructional approaches emerges Each chapter moves from research results to classroom action providing a direct and important link between research theory and practice The book develops the concept of the research based classroom in which students actively examine the processes and contexts of reading and writing and then turn their observations into principles for practice Hearing Ourselves Think contributes to a lively new tradition of socio cognitive research in writing and reading exploring the dynamics of cognitive processes as they interact with dimensions of the academic context

Academic and Research Literacy Practices of Final Year Teacher Trainees in Luanda, Angola Celeste Sambeny,2016-06-22 Academic and Research Literacy Practices of Final Year Teacher Trainees in Luanda Angola presents a detailed study of students and lecturers at higher teacher training institutions where English is taught as a medium of instruction and specialisation As such the book will help raise the awareness of educators teachers and supervisors of the need to be more supportive to students and will highlight the importance of increased responsibility on the part of the students regarding their studies especially during the process of writing their research reports Practical experience has shown that in most classrooms students are typically asked to produce texts for one single audience namely the teacher or the lecturer who already knows what constitutes an acceptable response However in many classrooms teachers and lecturers tend to believe that literacy can be defined as the ability to encode and decode texts the ability to decipher the main idea of a reading passage or to write a text that obeys the general conventions of language usage such as syntax organisation and idea development The central argument of this book however is that at higher levels of the educational system in Angola academic and research literacy practices are at best questionable and at worst harmful An extensive re evaluation of assumptions regarding student capability and what it means to be a literate in the twenty first century information society is of critical importance Such a re examination allows for extensive reflection on current practices and a powerful critique of traditional academic and research literacy methods and suggests ways in which practices of quality teaching and learning may be implemented
