Plant Life Cycles

FROM SEED TO TREE

Every plant begins its life as a tiny seed. The seed contains all the information it needs to grow into a mature plant. When the seed is planted in the soil, it begins to grow. The first stage is called germination. The seed absorbs water from the soil and begins to swell. The seedling then emerges from the soil and grows into a young plant. The young plant has two main parts: the roots and the stem. The roots anchor the plant in the soil and absorb water and nutrients. The stem supports the leaves and transports water and nutrients throughout the plant. The leaves are the main part of the plant that makes food. They use sunlight and carbon dioxide from the air to make food through a process called photosynthesis. As the plant grows, it branches out and its leaves multiply. The plant continues to grow until it reaches its full size and becomes a mature tree.
