Community Series in Cell Network in Antitumor Immunity of Pediatric and Adult Solid Tumors, volume II Ombretta Melaiu, Silvia Pesce, Elin Bernson, 2025-08-18 This Research Topic is the second volume of the Community Series in Cell Network in Antitumor Immunity of Pediatric and Adult Solid Tumors Please see the first volume here The field of cancer immunology has made significant strides in understanding the role of the immune system in tumor dynamics particularly in pediatric and adult solid tumors The immune system s dual role in either suppressing or stimulating tumor growth has ushered in a new era of cancer treatment emphasizing the importance of a coordinated anti tumor immune response This response involves a complex interplay between innate and adaptive immune cells such as dendritic cells T cells natural killer cells and others which work together to recognize and destroy tumor cells However the tumor microenvironment TME presents a significant challenge as it comprises various cellular and non cellular components that can either support or hinder anti tumor immunity Despite advances in immunotherapy including the use of checkpoint inhibitors and NK cell based therapies many patients still experience resistance or relapse highlighting the need for a deeper understanding of the cellular interactions within the TME and their impact on immune function This research topic aims to explore the intricate cellular communication within the TME during cancer initiation progression and response to therapy The focus will be on how cancer cells influence immune system function and the interplay between innate and adaptive immunity within the TME By examining these interactions the research seeks to uncover therapeutic strategies that can prevent immune evasion and stimulate robust long lasting anticancer immune responses Key questions include understanding the regulatory mechanisms of the TME on immune cells identifying new therapeutic targets and optimizing existing immunomodulatory drugs to enhance the anti tumor immune response To gather further insights into the cellular interactions within the TME we welcome articles addressing but not limited to the following themes Regulation of innate and adaptive immunity by the TME Molecular mechanisms underlying interactions between immune cells and tumor cells blood cells adipocytes pericytes stromal cells Myeloid lymphoid communication with the TME during cancer progression Optimization of existing immunomodulatory drugs that targeting the TME restore or boost the adaptive immune response against cancer cells Identification of new therapies that by interfering with cellular crosstalk reprogram a dysfunctional microenvironment in favor of effective anti tumor immunity Understanding how interactions between cancer cells immune cells and other TME components affect therapy based anti checkpoint inhibitors Exploration of novel biomarkers and therapeutic targets related to cell cell interaction within the TME Manuscripts consisting solely of bioinformatics or computational analysis of public genomic or transcriptomic databases which are not accompanied by robust and relevant validation are considered out of scope of this section

Computer Buyer's Guide and Handbook, 2001-07      Artificial Intelligence Applications In Human Pathology Ralf Huss, Michael Grunkin, 2022-03-04 Artificial Intelligence Applications in Human Pathology deals with the latest topics in biomedical research and clinical cancer diagnostics With chapters provided by true international experts in the field this book gives real examples of the implementation of AI and machine learning in human pathology Advances in machine learning and AI in general have propelled computational and general pathology research Today computer systems approach the diagnostic levels achieved by humans for certain well defined tasks in pathology At the same time pathologists are faced with an increased workload both quantitatively numbers of cases and qualitatively the amount of work per case with increasing treatment options and the type of data delivered by pathologists also expected to become more fine grained AI will support and leverage mathematical tools and implement data driven methods as a center for data interpretation in modern tissue diagnosis and pathology Digital or computational pathology will also foster the training of future computational pathologists those with both pathology and non pathology backgrounds who will eventually decide that AI based pathology will serve as an indispensable hub for data related research in a global health care system Some of the specific topics explored within include an introduction to DL as applied to Pathology Standardized Tissue Sampling for Automated Analysis integrating Computational Pathology into Histopathology workflows Readers will also find examples of specific techniques applied to specific diseases that will aid their research and treatments including but not limited to Tissue Cartography for Colorectal Cancer Ki 67 Measurements in Breast Cancer and Light Sheet Microscopy as applied to Virtual Histology The key role for pathologists in tissue diagnostics will prevail and even expand through interdisciplinary work and the intuitive use of an advanced and interoperating AI supported pathology workflow delivering novel and complex features that will serve the understanding of individual diseases and of course the patient
