Ralph Ellison and Kenneth Burke at the Roots of the Racial Divide Bryan Crable, 2012 Ralph Ellison and Kenneth Burke focuses on the little known but important friendship between two canonical American writers The story of this fifty year friendship however is more than literary biography Bryan Crable argues that the Burke Ellison relationship can be interpreted as a microcosm of the American racial divide Through examination of published writings and unpublished correspondence he reconstructs the dialogue between Burke and Ellison about race that shaped some of their most important works including Burke's A Rhetoric of Motives and Ellison's Invisible Man In addition the book connects this dialogue to changes in American discourse about race Crable shows that these two men were deeply connected intellectually and personally but the social division between white and black Americans produced hesitation embarrassment mystery and estrangement where Ellison and Burke might otherwise have found unity By using Ellison's nonfiction and Burke's rhetorical theory to articulate a new vocabulary of race the author concludes not with a simplistic healing of the divide but with a challenge to embrace the responsibility inherent to our social order American Literatures Initiative A Guide to Working

Truths Prodosh Aich, MVR Nair, 2017-04-28 We are what we know We know what is handed down Our daily life is organised by historical narrations Universally To judge over the validity of historical narrations and of history we must know all about those narrators of history Today and during the last two centuries all narrators of history are educated in institutions created by European Christians They narrate history incoherently though the history all over is coherent and interdependent The libraries are flooded by incoherent deliberations and with books that are copied and pasted from other books This is more so since the rise of the Ottoman Empire since the blockade of the land route and beginning of search for a sea route to India and all that has followed thereafter until our days Why do they narrate incoherently though historical developments are coherent and interdependent by its nature Why do they copy and paste and duplicate To judge over the validity of historical narrations in their books the authors of this book search and investigate into the acquired qualifications and careers of all main narrators of this history The search is based on primary documents The result of this search is thrilling mysterious and stunning We are fed by books that are based on secondary sources These books are mere propaganda which should be stored in bad libraries The result of this search has banged on the Pandora s Box and it is open now

Strategic Fund Development Simone P. Joyaux, 2001 This groundbreaking book now in its second edition offers important insights critical strategies and useful tools to enhance your organization s performance and raise more charitable contributions Joyaux challenges the fundraising profession to focus on organizational development rather than merely promoting fundraising technicians Joyaux integrates staff work with that of volunteers and demands a basic change in the way we do business
