Achieving Adaptability Through Inquiry Based Learning Thomas M. Duffy, 2010      Emergent Problems in Nonlinear Systems and Control Bijoy Ghosh, Clyde F. Martin, Yishao Zhou, 2009-10-06 Papers in this collection partly represent the set of talks that were presented at Texas Tech University on the occasion of Daya's memorial workshop in the year 2007. Daya had a varied interest in the field of Dynamics and Control Theory and the papers bring out the essence of his involvement in these activities. He also had a large number of collaborators and this collection represents a good fraction of them. The papers included here cover his interest in control theory. Also included are papers from application areas that we believe are of strong interest to him.

Transactions on Pattern Languages of Programming IV James Noble, Ralph Johnson, Uwe Zdun, Eugene Wallingford, 2019-03-04 The Transactions on Pattern Languages of Programming subline aims to publish papers on patterns and pattern languages as applied to software design development and use throughout all phases of the software life cycle from requirements and design to implementation maintenance and evolution. The primary focus of this LNCS Transactions subline is on patterns, pattern collections and pattern languages themselves. The journal also includes reviews, survey articles, criticisms of patterns and pattern languages as well as other research on patterns and pattern languages. This book, the third volume in the Transactions on Pattern Languages of Programming series, presents five papers that have been through a careful peer review process involving both pattern experts and domain experts. Speech Language Therapy as a Global Practice Bea Staley, Chisomo Selemani, Marise Fernandes, 2025-08-15 Speech Language Therapy as a Global Practice focuses on the necessary skills and considerations needed to be a culturally responsive clinician in a multicultural and multilingual world. The book highlights current issues of global practice and advocates for appropriate ways to engage with global communities. It positions culture context and collaboration as integral and intertwined components of speech language therapy work. Drawing on examples of successful and ongoing collaborative global speech language therapy partnerships, chapters cover a breadth of topics including social justice, translanguaging and colourism and include a series of reflective questions. Authors grapple with ways to challenge the status quo and consider alternative ways of being knowing and doing including the use of technology and innovation in global practice. Overall, this collection highlights the importance of creating space for discussion as the profession of speech language therapy is now practiced in more countries than ever before. This much needed book will be essential reading for students and practising speech language therapists, particularly those interested in cultural competence, meaningful reflection and ethical practice. It will also be of interest to allied health professionals working with individuals experiencing communication disability.

Gleim,Patrick R. Delaney,1991-07-02      ECSCW 2001 Wolfgang Prinz,Matthias Jarke,Yvonne Rogers,K. Schmidt,Volker Wulf,2007-05-08 Schmidt and Bannon 1992 introduced the concept of common information space by contrasting it with technical conceptions of shared information Cooperative work is not facilitated simply by the provisioning of a shared database but rather requires the active construction by the participants of a common information space where the meanings of the shared objects are debated and resolved at least locally and temporarily Schmidt and Bannon p 22 A CIS then encompasses not only the information but also the practices by which actors establish its meaning for their collective work

These negotiated understandings of the information are as important as the availability of the information itself. The actors must attempt to jointly construct a common information space which goes beyond their individual personal information spaces. The common information space is negotiated and established by the actors involved. Schmidt and Bannon p 28. This is not to suggest that actors' understandings of the information are identical; they are simply common enough to coordinate the work. People understand how the information is relevant for their own work. Therefore, individuals engaged in different activities will have different perspectives on the same information. The work of maintaining the common information space is the work that it takes to balance and accommodate these different perspectives. A bug report in software development is a simple example. Software developers and quality assurance personnel have access to the same bug report information. However, access to information is not sufficient to coordinate their work.

Selected papers from the 2nd International Symposium on UAVs, Reno, U.S.A. June 8-10, 2009 Kimon P. Valavanis, Randal Beard, Paul Oh, Aníbal Ollero, Leslie A. Piegl, Hayong Shin, 2011-04-11. In the last decade, significant changes have occurred in the field of vehicle motion planning, and for UAVs in particular. UAV motion planning is especially difficult due to several complexities not considered by earlier planning strategies: the increased importance of differential constraints, atmospheric turbulence, which makes it impossible to follow a pre-computed plan precisely, uncertainty in the vehicle state, and limited knowledge about the environment due to limited sensor capabilities. These differences have motivated the increased use of feedback and other control engineering techniques for motion planning. The lack of exact algorithms for these problems and difficulty inherent in characterizing approximation algorithms makes it impractical to determine algorithm time complexity, completeness, and even soundness. This gap has not yet been addressed by statistical characterization of experimental performance of algorithms and benchmarking. Because of this overall lack of knowledge, it is difficult to design a guidance system, let alone choose the algorithm. Throughout this paper, we keep in mind some of the general characteristics and requirements pertaining to UAVs. A UAV is typically modeled as having velocity and acceleration constraints and potentially the higher order differential constraints associated with the equations of motion and the objective is to guide the vehicle towards a goal through an obstacle field. A UAV guidance problem is typically characterized by a three dimensional problem space limited information about the environment on board sensors with limited range speed and acceleration constraints and uncertainty in vehicle state and sensor data.
