Government in South Africa ,2007 Creating Cultural Capital Olaf Kuhlke, Annick Schramme, Rene Kooyman, 2015-06-12 In recent years the global creative economy has experienced unprecedented growth Considerable research has been conducted to determine what exactly the creative economy is what occupations are grouped together as such and how it is to be measured Organizations on various scales from the United Nations to local governments have released creative or cultural economy reports developed policies for creative urban renewal and directed attention to creative placemaking the purposeful infusion of creative activity into specific urban environments Parallel to these research and policy interests academic institutions and professional organizations have begun a serious discussion about training programs for future professionals in the creative and cultural industries We now have entire colleges offering undergraduate and graduate programs leading to degrees in arts management arts entrepreneurship cultural management cultural entrepreneurship or cultural economics And many professional organizations offer specialized training and certificates in cultural heritage museums studies entertainment and film In this book we bring together over fifty scholars from across the globe to shed light on what we collectively call cultural entrepreneurship the training of professionals for the creative industries who will be change agents and resourceful visionaries that organize cultural financial social and human capital to generate revenue from a cultural and creative activity Part I of this volume begins with the observation that the creative industries and the cultural entrepreneurship generated within them are a global phenomenon An increasingly mobile international workforce is moving cultural goods and services across national boundaries at unprecedented rates As a result the education of cultural professionals engaged in global commerce has become equally internationalized Part II looks into the emergence of cultural entrepreneurship as a new academic discipline and interrogates the theoretical foundations that inform the pedagogy and training for the creative industries Design thinking humanities poetics risk strategy and the artist entrepreneur dichotomy are at the heart of this discussion Part III showcases the design of cultural entrepreneurship curricula and the pedagogies employed in teaching artists and culture industry specialists Our authors examine pedagogy and curriculum at various scales and in national and international contexts from the creation of entire new schools to undergraduate graduate programs Part IV provides case studies that focus on industry or sector specific training skills based courses information technology social media entrepreneurial competitions and more Part V concludes the book with selected examples of practitioner training for the cultural industries as it is offered outside of academia In addition this section provides examples of how professionals outside of academia have informed academic training and course work Readers will find conceptual frameworks for building new programs for the creative industries examples of pedagogical approaches and skillsbased training that are based on research and student assessments and concrete examples of program and course implementation COMLA Newsletter, 1997 Geobulletin Geological Society of South Africa, 2003 Quarterly news bulletin Kwartaallikse nuusbuletin

Boekmark, 1996 A composite index of quality of life for the Gauteng city-region: a principal component analysis approach Talita Greyling, The improvement of the quality of life of all South Africans is high on the agenda at national The National Planning Commission 2012 and regional levels of government The Gauteng Planning Commission 2012 and it is therefore important to develop an instrument that can measure this multi dimensional concept The need therefore exists for a composite index of quality of life with the ability to both track the quality of life of people over time and compare it across different demographic and socio economic groups Such a measure could identify those demographic and socio economic groups with low levels of quality of life and also highlight dimensions that need to be prioritised in order to improve the wellbeing of people In South Africa there are a limited number of quality of life indices and measures of wellbeing Indices that measure wellbeing nationally include the Quality of Life Index of Moller and Schlemmer 1983 the Living Standard Measure LSM Index produced by the South African Audience Research Foundation SAARF 2013 the South African Development Index of the South African Institute of Race Relations 2011 and the Everyday Quality of Life Index Higgs 2007 The following indices measure wellbeing at a regional level the Quality of Metropolitan City Life in South Africa Index Naude et al 2009 the Non Economic Quality of Life Index at Sub National Levels Rossouw Naude 2008 and the Quality of Life Index of the Gauteng City Region Observatory GCRO 2011 Although these quality of life indices make distinctive contributions to the study field the focus of these studies is often to measure only objective or subjective quality of life or only economic or non economic quality of life rather than all of the above Furthermore many of the indices use equal weighting which does not necessarily reflect the priorities of the communities Modelling urban spatial change: a review of international and South African modelling initiatives Chris Wray, 2013-08-30 Urban growth and land use change models have the potential to become important tools for urban spatial planning and management. Before embarking on any modelling, however, GCRO felt it was important to take note of and critically assess lessons to be learnt from international experience and scholarship on spatial modelling as well as a number of South African experiments that model future urban development. In 2012, GCRO initiated preliminary research into current international and South African modelling trends through a desktop study and telephone email and personal interviews. This Occasional paper sets out to investigate what urban spatial change modelling research is currently being undertaken internationally and within South Africa. At the international level, urban modelling research since 2000 is reviewed according to five main categories: land use transportation LUT, cellular automata, urban system dynamics, agent-based models ABMs, and spatial economics econometric models SE EMs. Within South Africa, urban modelling initiatives are categorised differently and include a broader range of urban modelling techniques. Typologies used include provincial government modelling initiatives in Gauteng, municipal government modelling initiatives, other government-funded modelling research, and academic modelling research. The various modelling initiatives described are by no means a comprehensive review of all urban spatial change modelling projects in South Africa but provide a broad indication of the types of urban spatial change modelling underway. Importantly, the models may form the basis for more accurate and sophisticated urban modelling projects in the future. The paper concludes by identifying key urban modelling opportunities and challenges for short to long term planning in the GCR and South Africa. The Phone Book Telkom (Firm : South Africa), 2004
