

Optics - The Study of Light

Refraction

Light refracts when passing between two substances at an angle.

Light does not bend as glass that is not yet within water. Bending begins at boundary between air and water.

Light travels faster in water than in air, so it bends, compressing the light to bend towards the water.

The refractive index (n) is the ratio of the speed of light in a vacuum to the speed of light in a medium.

Reflection

Light reflects off a surface. Angle of incidence equals angle of reflection.

Normal - an imaginary line 90° perpendicular to a surface.

Angle of Incidence - the angle between the incident ray and the normal.

Angle of Reflection - the angle between the reflected ray and the normal.

Focus

Point at which all incident light rays converge after reflection from a curved surface. Focus is the focal point of a lens.

Concave Mirrors

Concave mirrors focus light rays that are parallel to the principal axis. They have a focal point in front of the mirror.

Convex Mirrors

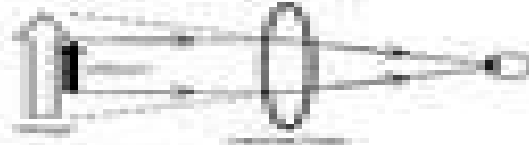

The surface is curved out, away from the light source.

The image is virtual, upright, and smaller than the object.

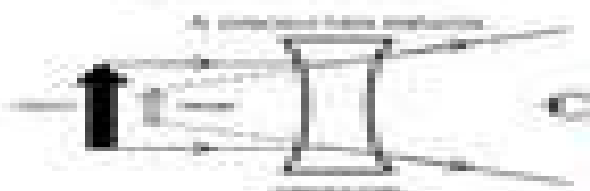

Lenses

Lenses work by refraction, bending light rays that pass through them.

A convex lens converges light.

A concave lens diverges light.

A concave lens is divergent, the light rays spread apart.

Image is virtual and upright.

Concave and convex lenses converge or diverge light. If a converging lens is placed in front of a diverging lens, the result is a converging lens.

Concave Lenses

Concave lenses diverge light rays.

Optical Systems

Microscopes and telescopes use multiple lenses to magnify objects. Light rays are focused and then spread out to form a virtual image.

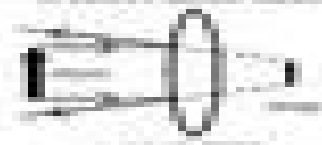

Optical systems are used in many applications, from cameras to medical imaging.

Images

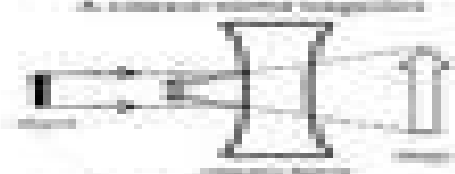

Images are formed by light rays. The image is a representation of the object.

The image is formed by the intersection of light rays. The image is real if the rays actually intersect.

A convex lens forms a real image.

A concave lens forms a virtual image.

A concave lens forms a virtual image.

Image is virtual and upright.
