- 1-2. Inventions during the industrial revolution brought workers together under one roof in a factory setting where division of labor and interchangeable parts encouraged the formation of separate worker and management jobs. Ideas from the scientific management era made work more efficient. Human relations theorists emphasized the importance of the human element in operations management. The management science era saw many advances in quantitative techniques and their application. The quality revolution focused management on meeting customer expectations and emphasized quality over quantity. The Internet brought numerous opportunities to do work faster and better. It also opened doors to new markets worldwide. Today's successful companies compete worldwide for both market access and production resources.
- 1-3. Competitiveness is the degree to which a nation can produce goods and services that meet the test of international markets. A country's competitiveness is measured by its GNP, import/export ratio, and increases in productivity. Industry competitiveness can be measured by the number of major players in the industry, average market share, and average profit margin. Measures of a firm's competitiveness include market share, earnings per share, revenue growth, and profit margins. The Internet has opened new avenues of trade so that more firms compete for a larger, global market. The ease with which
