

During Pre-migration Periods: Female, Immature females, immigrants from elsewhere

Copy Deleted this information

Immigrants from other colonies are important for population growth and genetic diversity

Female: Immigrants from other colonies

1. How large is the proportion of females?

Approximately 20-30% of the population

2. What is the proportion of females?

Approximately 20-30% of the population

3. What are the reasons for the proportion of females?

Because the males are more likely to be involved in the breeding and they have higher mortality rates than the females. By having a higher mortality rate, the females are more likely to survive and breed.

4. What are the reasons for the proportion of females?

Approximately 20-30% of the population, although being the dominant sex.
