

The image displays a variety of automotive gears and components, likely for a 4L60E transmission. On the left, there are stacks of gears with orange and black teeth. In the center, two large, circular metal components, possibly input or output shafts, are visible. To the right, there are stacks of gears with silver teeth. At the top, two small, circular components with colored rings (yellow and red) are shown. At the bottom, there are several small, circular components, including what appear to be synchronizers or shims, and a few small metal parts.
