Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and a training group. The control group consisted of 10 men who did not participate in any physical activity during the study. The training group consisted of 10 men who participated in a 10-week training program. The training program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The sessions were performed at a heart rate of 150 beats per minute. The HR and HRR were measured at the beginning and end of the study. The results showed that the training group had a significantly higher HR and HRR at the end of the study compared to the control group. The HR increased from 70 to 140 beats per minute, and the HRR increased from 30 to 70 beats per minute. The control group showed no significant change in HR and HRR. The results suggest that a 10-week training program can improve the HR and HRR of sedentary middle-aged men.

If you are not satisfied with your results, follow the instructions carefully and test your original article. If the editor still requests the (a) paragraph and (b) and (c) paragraphs, repeat the analysis with the original data. (b) and (c) are the same.

23. When configuring a multi-mount AFS, set `mountmnt` to your Netatun file: `mountmnt=/etc/netatun/`
24. If you're using the `afs` multi-mount method, add the following line to the `netatun` file: `afs=/etc/netatun/`. In most cases, a "Warning: cannot find the configuration file" message should be suppressed. This message will only appear if the type of the multi-mount AFS is pointing to the configuration file (e.g. 1).
25. Do not reboot the FS or move them, a FS-dependent.
26. When using the `afs` multi-mount method, you can choose to use the `afs` or the `afs` Netatun Client.

- Day and night periods that are longer than the standard 24 hours occur most commonly with the use of artificial light or natural light at night. To reduce the risk of circadian rhythm disruption, it is recommended that the amount of artificial light be reduced to the lowest level possible.
- Artificial lights that emit red light are less likely to disrupt circadian rhythms than blue light, which is the most disruptive. Red light is used in some medical settings, such as in the operating room, to reduce the risk of circadian rhythm disruption.
- The use of artificial light at night can also disrupt the circadian rhythm of the body's internal clock, leading to sleep problems. To reduce the risk of circadian rhythm disruption, it is recommended that the amount of artificial light be reduced to the lowest level possible.
- Nighttime light exposure can also disrupt the circadian rhythm of the body's internal clock, leading to sleep problems. To reduce the risk of circadian rhythm disruption, it is recommended that the amount of artificial light be reduced to the lowest level possible.
