Monographs, 1921 Logic in Grammar Gennaro Chierchia, 2013-07-25 This book investigates the relation between language and logic Gennaro Chierchia looks at the way syntactic and inferential processes interact in determining polarity sensitive and free choice phenomena He analyses these as a form of grammaticized scalar implicature and seeks to identify the common core of the polarity system by examining many of its manifestations as well as the choices that determine its diversity To do so he reassesses the relations between syntax semantics and pragmatics and in the process makes startling insights into the relation of syntax to logic Rudolf Carnap's classic The Logical Syntax of Language defines syntax as a lexicon and a set of formation rules and logic as a set of inference rules Modern generative linguistics maintains a similar modular approach a combinatorial apparatus is said to generate structures over which semantic and pragmatic relations such as presupposition and implicature are defined This book argues by contrast that many structures typically perceived as syntactically deviant owe their status to their logical properties in other words to whether they are contradictory or analytically true in specific ways This alters the Carnapian view The characterization of grammatical structure requires a more direct role of logical inferences the functional lexicon of grammar comes Professor Chierchia shows with a set of inference rules that crucially and directly determine grammaticality patterns Logic in Grammar presents the results of the author's decade long work on pragmatics and scalar implicatures and extends his long term project on how humans reason and categorize the world It is a book that will interest linguists philosophers and cognitive scientists alike Grammatical

Inference: Algorithms and Applications Pieter Adriaans, Henning Fernau, Menno van Zaanen, 2003-08-02 The Sixth International Colloquium on Grammatical Inference ICGI2002 was held in Amsterdam on September 23-25th 2002 ICGI2002 was the sixth in a series of successful biennial international conferences on the area of grammatical inference Previous meetings were held in Essex U.K. Alicante Spain Montpellier France Ames Iowa USA Lisbon Portugal This series of meetings seeks to provide a forum for the presentation and discussion of original research on all aspects of grammatical inference Grammatical inference the process of inferring grammars from given data is a field that not only is challenging from a purely scientific standpoint but also finds many applications in real world problems Despite the fact that grammatical inference addresses problems in a relatively narrow area it uses techniques from many domains and is positioned at the intersection of a number of different disciplines Researchers in grammatical inference come from fields as diverse as machine learning theoretical computer science computational linguistics pattern recognition and artificial neural networks From a practical standpoint applications in areas like natural language quision computational biology structural pattern recognition information trieval text processing data compression and adaptive intelligent agents have either been demonstrated or proposed in the literature The technical program included the presentation of 23 accepted papers out of 41 submitted Moreover for the rst time a software presentation was or nized at ICGI Short descriptions of the corresponding software are included in these proceedings too

Learning foreign languages: experiences of persons with disabilities and special educational needs and their teachers Ewa Domagala-Zysk,Jitka Sedláčková,Katarzyna Karpińska-Szaj,2025-09-22 In many parts of the world it is not a person's native language but a foreign one which is used for education work or entertainment. This is true for many European countries whose inhabitants need to learn English as a foreign language if they want to participate in education or among diverse fields in the workforce. In other parts of the world it might be Spanish, Hindi, Mandarin, Chinese, Arabic or other languages which will be serving a similar role. This need for learning a second language is understood well in many educational programs including those for students with special educational needs. However, to date there is not much research of the experiences of persons with diverse additional needs as learners of foreign languages. The most robust literature covers the field of additional language acquisition among Deaf and Hard of Hearing (DHH) people (cf. Domaga & Zy k Podlowska Moritz 2021) and others. Goals, methods and forms of teaching are fairly well described and DHH students' needs have been documented extensively.

Increasing Naturalness in the Language Learning Classroom
 Szilvia Szita, 2024-07-31. This volume links corpus research to classroom practice and critically assesses how the integration of a corpus-informed methodology affects pedagogical choices, teaching materials and classroom activities. Focusing on the language classroom and drawing on examples from English, French, German and Hungarian, this book demonstrates that such methodology is applicable to languages with very different properties. Drawing on both larger general and smaller more specialised corpora including both spoken and written data, this volume presents the key features of natural language according to corpus linguistics, establishing principles and methods to observe and practice natural sounding language use, suggests the characteristics of a coherent corpus-informed methodology and contrasts this with existing methodologies, explores ways in which this methodology can enhance language learning and discusses the types of activities that are most effective. It explains how this methodology can be integrated into teacher training, bridging the long persisting gap between corpus-informed language teaching research and applied classroom reform. This book is key reading for researchers in applied linguistics and language pedagogy as well as teacher trainers and practitioners.

The University of Virginia Record
 University of Virginia, 1921. European Portfolio for Student Teachers of Languages David Newby, 2007-01-01. The European Portfolio for Student Teachers of Languages (EPOSTL) is a document intended for students undergoing their initial teacher education which encourages them to reflect on the didactic knowledge and skills necessary to teach languages, helps them to assess their own didactic competences and enables them to monitor their progress and to record their experiences of teaching during the course of their teacher education. It was developed for the European Centre for Modern Languages of the Council of Europe by a team of teacher educators from Armenia, Austria, Norway, Poland and UK, assisted by student teachers and teacher educators from all 33 member states of the ECML. Building on insights from the Common European Framework of Reference and the European Language Portfolio as well as the European Commission-financed project European Profile for Language Teacher Education: A Frame of Reference Profile, it seeks to help prepare students for their future profession in a variety of teaching contexts. Further, the EPOSTL can facilitate discussion of aims and curricula between teacher educators.

International licence It is free to read at Oxford Academic and offered as a free PDF download from OUP and selected open access locations This volume explores the long held assumption in linguistics that language change may proceed in a cyclical fashion Cyclic change has recently attracted renewed interest most notably with respect to the evolution of negation across a range of languages but also in relation to a wide range of other phenomena The chapters in this book take as their point of departure the hypothesis that cyclic change is pragmatically driven and analyse forms of this change in morphosyntax the lexicon and semantics and pragmatics as well as the interaction between these levels across a range of mainly Indo European languages and language families but also including Semitic Sinitic and Austronesian languages They also discuss the epistemological status of cycles explore their relationship with other recognized forms of change examine the limits of the notion of a cycle in language change and discuss cyclicity from a cognitive pragmatic and sociopragmatic perspective

Grammars for Language and Genes David Chiang, 2011-09-01 Grammars are gaining importance in natural language processing and computational biology as a means of encoding theories and structuring algorithms But one serious obstacle to applications of grammars is that formal language theory traditionally classifies grammars according to their weak generative capacity what sets of strings they generate and tends to ignore strong generative capacity what sets of structural descriptions they generate even though the latter is more relevant to applications This book develops and demonstrates a framework for carrying out rigorous comparisons of grammar formalisms in terms of their usefulness for applications focusing on three areas of application statistical parsing natural language translation and biological sequence analysis These results should pave the way for theoretical research to pursue results that are more directed towards applications and for practical research to explore the use of advanced grammar formalisms more easily
