Rey,2017 The proposed topic Blood Donation of Youth in Philippine Red Cross addresses the need for more blood donors especially the youth as blood supply is still insufficient The need for blood is far greater than the supply available in blood banks There is a great need for blood donors because we can never tell when an individual will be in need of blood transfusions The objective of the project is to build wider public awareness of the need for regular blood donation and increase the number of youth blood donors in order to maintain an adequate supply of blood for all patients requiring blood transfusion It aims to help the Philippine Red Cross boost up its campaign on voluntary blood donation by encouraging generous donors who are eligible as well as new donors to donate blood and to make sure that blood supply will always be readily available for patients who will be needing it The communication theory to be used in the research is Health Belief Model the first theory that was developed exclusively for health related behaviors The approach to be used for the research will be triangulation method The qualitative approach will make use of interviews as its research tool and shall be conducted to the Philippine Red Cross National Blood Services committee On the other hand the quantitative approach will make use of surveys as its research tools and be conducted to youth blood donors and non donors ages 16 26 years old residing in Metro Manila Cumulated Index Medicus ,1998 Guidelines for the Selection of Blood Donors ,1994 Serological and Immunological Methods Brian P.
