Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the performance of a group of young athletes. The program was designed to improve the athletes' aerobic capacity, muscular strength, and speed. The results of the study showed that the athletes who participated in the training program showed significant improvements in their performance compared to the control group. The improvements were observed in all three areas of performance: aerobic capacity, muscular strength, and speed. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week training program can be effective in improving the performance of young athletes.
