Populism and the Crisis of Democracy Gregor Fitz, Juergen Mackert, Bryan Turner, 2018-10-11 The contributions to this volume Migration Gender and Religion bring together empirically grounded and theoretically sophisticated case studies of populist responses to what are perceived to be the threats to national survival and sovereignty from uncontrolled immigration The demographic context declining fertility rates and ageing populations promotes the belief that high Muslim fertility rates are material evidence of an Islamic threat to the West to national cohesion and particularly to the safety and dignity of the women of the host community Consequently gender plays an important part in populist ideology but populist attitudes to gender are often contradictory Populist movements are often marked by misogyny and by policies that are typically anti feminist in rejecting gender equality The traditional family with a dominant father and submissive mother is promoted as the basis of national values and the remedy against social decline The obsession with women in the public domain points to a crisis of masculinity associated with unemployment the impact of austerity packages on social status and the growth of pink collar employment Inevitably religion is drawn into these political debates about the future of Western societies because religion in general has seen the family and mothers as essential for the reproduction of religion Christendom has been identified by populists as providing the ultimate defence of the borders of European civilisation against Islam despite the fact that church leaders have often defended and welcomed outsiders in terms of Christian charity Once more Christian Europe is the Abendland standing in defiance of a threatening and subversive Morgenland This volume
