Light And Shade In War [Illustrated Edition] Captain Malcolm Ross, 2014-08-15 Two Kiwis recount their experiences of the Front at Gallipoli and France during the First World War Included are a number of their own photographs THE authors of this book father and son have seen much of the Light and Shade of War during the past two years the one as a War Correspondent in Egypt Turkey and France the other as a soldier and afterwards as one of the staff of The Times The day for writing the histories of our different campaigns is not yet For the purposes of history delay is necessary even though the gain in perspective may mean loss in colour But there is a legitimate desire for the intimate and immediate impressions of the time written down amid the ever shifting scenes of the War itself Such impressions will have some value now and perhaps also in after years Most of these sketches were written whilst the scenes and incidents they depict were fresh in the mind some under fire The proofs were corrected on the battlefield of the Somme in a tent over which British and German shells were passing at the time While due allowance will be made for shortcomings owing to the circumstances under which the book was produced the authors hope that no apology will be needed for presenting such pictures of the Light and Shade of War to the English speaking World

The Logic of Metaphor Eric Steinhart, 2013-06-29

1 Metaphors and Logic Metaphors are among the most vigorous offspring of the creative mind but their vitality springs from the fact that they are logical organisms in the ecology of language I aim to use logical techniques to analyze the meanings of metaphors My goal here is to show how contemporary formal semantics can be extended to handle metaphorical utterances What distinguishes this work is that it focuses intensely on the logical aspects of metaphors I stress the role of logic in the generation and interpretation of metaphors While I don't presuppose any formal training in logic some familiarity with philosophical logic the propositional calculus and the predicate calculus is helpful Since my theory makes great use of the notion of structure I refer to it as the structural theory of metaphor STM STM is a semantic theory of metaphor if STM is correct then metaphors are cognitively meaningful and are non-trivially logically linked with truth I aim to extend possible worlds semantics to handle metaphors I'll argue that some sentences in natural languages like English have multiple meanings Juliet is the sun has at least two meanings the literal meaning Juliet is the sun and the metaphorical meaning Juliet is the sun MET Each meaning is a function from possible worlds to truth values I deny that these functions are identical I deny that the metaphorical function is necessarily false or necessarily true
