Reconceptualizing Physical Education through Curricular and Pedagogical Innovations Joy Butler, 2015-07-05 For more than a century formal education has been struggling to redefine

itself in response to shifting societal needs new research into human learning and emergent understandings of how the world works Clearly it s difficult to offer advice that is appropriately responsive across this range of influence The collected chapters in this book manage to do that by discarding the popular habit of thinking about Physical Education in terms of opportunities to let off steam or otherwise satisfy the needs of an easily distracted body Rather the gendered acculturated complex body serves as the site of possibility thus framing hopeful rich and timely conceptions of learners learning and teaching

Reconceptualizing Physical Education through Teaching Games for Understanding Joy Butler,2012-08-08 By using Teaching Games for Understanding TGfU as a catalyst for thinking about ontological and epistemological issues in Physical Education the teachers researchers and authors of this book have become ambassadors for new ideas that challenge some of our entrenched educational values We are proud to be able to share some of their pioneering research which we believe will be of great interest to others in the field who are interested in constructivist student centred and holistic approaches to teaching and learning in games education

Boys, Bodies, and Physical Education Göran Gerdin,2017-01-12 Using visual ethnography this book explores the many forms of pleasures that boys derive in and through the spaces and their bodies in physical education Employing the works of Michel Foucault and Judith Butler Gerdin examines how pleasure is connected to identity schooling and power relations and demonstrates how discourses of sport fitness health and masculinity work together to produce a variety of pleasurable experiences At the same time the book provides a critique of such pleasurable experiences within physical education by illustrating how these pleasures can still for some boys quickly turn into displeasures and can be associated with exclusion humiliation bullying and homophobia Boys Bodies and Physical Education argues that pleasure can both be seen as an educational and productive practice in physical education but also a constraint that both engenders and privileges some boys over others as well as re producing narrow and limited conceptions of masculinity and pleasures for all boys This book works to problematize these pleasures and their articulations with gender bodies and spaces

Transforming Teacher Education Hugh T. Sockett, Elizabeth K. DeMulder, Pamela C. LePage, Diane R. Wood, 2001-09-30 Teacher professional development requires a dynamic vision of education The authors argue that teaching and teacher education are moral rather than technical or instrumental endeavors and describe a highly innovative master's program for practicing teachers founded in 1992 By describing important aspects of the program the authors demonstrate that a moral vision can be enacted in practice despite many constraints and challenges They also show that any serious attempt to change practice will of course be unwieldy contentious and subject to sudden shocks and reversals as well as successes The work also provides a compelling and detailed account of the institutional and political conditions in higher education that militate against innovations in teacher education and professional development Authors of the chapters include the former director of the innovation the faculty who were involved in teaching and administering the program and teachers who studied with them Each chapter examines the practices pedagogically ideologically morally and professionally through the perspectives of people intimately involved with the program
