Plant Life Cycles

FROM SEED TO TREE

Every plant starts its life as a tiny seed. The seed contains all the information it needs to grow into a plant. When the seed is planted in the soil, it begins to grow. It needs water and sunlight to do this. The seedling grows and becomes a sapling, then a tree. The tree lives for many years and produces more seeds to start the cycle again.

LIFE OF A PLANT

A plant's life cycle is a series of changes that it goes through. It starts as a seed, grows into a seedling, then a young plant, and finally a mature plant. The mature plant produces seeds, which start the cycle over again. Plants need sunlight, water, and air to grow. They also need soil to anchor them and provide nutrients.

THE SEED'S JOURNEY

A seed's journey begins when it is released from a parent plant. It may fall to the ground or be carried away by the wind. The seed needs to land in a suitable place to grow. It needs soil, water, and sunlight. Once these conditions are met, the seed begins to grow. It first forms a root, then a stem, and finally leaves. The seedling grows and becomes a young plant.

BLOOM AND GROW

Plants go through a cycle of growth and development. They start as a seed, grow into a seedling, then a young plant, and finally a mature plant. The mature plant produces flowers, which are used for reproduction. The flowers produce seeds, which start the cycle over again. Plants need sunlight, water, and air to grow. They also need soil to anchor them and provide nutrients.

PLANTS THROUGH SEASONS

Plants change throughout the year as the seasons change. In spring, plants begin to grow. In summer, they grow and produce flowers. In autumn, they shed their leaves. In winter, they go dormant. Some plants are deciduous, meaning they lose their leaves in winter. Other plants are evergreen, meaning they keep their leaves all year long. Plants need sunlight, water, and air to grow. They also need soil to anchor them and provide nutrients.
