Reproduction in Gymnosperms

Gymnosperms are seed-bearing plants that do not produce flowers and fruits. They have a long life span and are mostly found in temperate regions. The male gametes are released by the pollen grains.

The female gametes are released by the ovules. The ovules are attached to the central axis of the ovary. The ovules are protected by the ovule integuments. The ovule integuments are made of two layers. The outer layer is called the nucellus and the inner layer is called the integument.

The female cycle involves the production of ovules, which are released and land on a male tree. The cycle is completed when the pollen grain fertilizes the ovule, resulting in a new seedling.
