Wings of Gauze Barbara Bair, Susan E. Cayleff, 1993 Minority women are also less likely to have personal physicians to have quality health insurance coverage or to be treated with respect and understanding in negotiating with health care institutions. However, many have as resources belief systems and traditions of caretaking expertise and mutual understanding that broaden dominant ways of perceiving well or ill being in the world. Thus, their stories are about both oppression and empowerment, victimization as well as the strength to reshape and redefine. The emphasis in this collection is on changing perception, giving voice, and addressing the issues of racial discrimination. There is also discussion of solutions, ways to personal empowerment and better health, ways of changing outreach to more equitably instill the benefits of preventive education, ways of altering the structures of care offered through health institutions, and ways to think about self help.

Highlights from Survey of Psychiatric Aides National Institute of Mental Health (U.S.). Chiswick, Paul W.

Miller, 2007-03-08. Written by two internationally renowned experts in the field, this book explores the determinants of dominant language proficiency among immigrants and other linguistic minorities and the consequences of this proficiency for the labour market. Using empirical material from a range of countries including the USA, Canada, Australia, and Bolivia, the authors develop a range of models of the determinants of dominant language proficiency and use econometric techniques to test them and estimate the magnitude of the effects. This volume is an excellent resource for researchers and a fine reader for specialists in labour economics, linguistics, as well as a number of other disciplines.
