

lawyers routinely undertake.<sup>11</sup> Attorneys now research in ways they never learned in law school, and this change is primarily driven by technology.<sup>12</sup> The explosion of easily accessible information makes information literacy a required component of law school legal research classes. Fourth, and closely related, is that changes in technology are eroding the foundational structure of the American legal system.<sup>13</sup> The growing choice of technological tools with which to retrieve, sort, and manage the staggering amount of available information changes how law and information are accessed.<sup>14</sup> These changes affect the very structure of American law, not merely how lawyers research the law.<sup>15</sup> This places the first-year law student in a situation where how she is taught legal analysis and reasoning does not comport with what she finds when she researches the law herself.<sup>16</sup>

The challenges created by an increasingly technological world have severe ramifications for legal education and can no longer be
