The Humble Essay Roy K. Humble, 2023-04-01 The Humble Essay is so much more than a writing textbook It gives you tools tips and tricks that actually explain what a writer does It doesn't sugarcoat the process or dumb down the very real challenges that entering a college writing space requires. This book is more like a friend. It's the kind of friend that will coach you through a tough time and encourage you and it will make you laugh while you go through it. It's the kind of friend who holds your hair back when you're sick of writing and gives you the courage to try again. Roy K. Humble is the kind of writing teacher who understands the struggle of learning how to write like a college student and doesn't just tell you what you want to hear. His lessons here are profound but in the sense that they are delivered by someone who wants you to feel included in the conversation about what good college writing should be. He writes to students in language they can understand without becoming English majors and with just enough humor to keep them reading. He writes for faculty moving step by step through the unadorned guiding principles of effective formal writing so that faculty have a great framework on which to build their classes. Perhaps most importantly, Humble understands that the price of a book matters to students so his books are affordable. From every perspective, Humble gets it. The Humble Essay has students covered on these important topics: Understanding the college essay as an idea, Grasping the stages of the writing process, Organizing the college essay around cohesive paragraphs, Thinking for yourself as a college student, Gathering and synthesizing sources and information, Guiding readers through a thoughtful college essay.

Information Systems Development for Emerging Public Sector Cross-sector Collaborations Kayvan Yousefi Mojir, 2018-09-28

Information systems (IS) seem prevalent in modern societies and have resulted in the rapid digitalisation of different societal sectors. One application domain of IS is emergency response, which is responsible for delivering essential services to save lives and minimise environmental damage in both small frequent and large scale emergencies. Specific IS applications are in turn used in emergency response to support such aspects as decision making, communication, information sharing and the dispatching of resources. Public sector cut backs and a lack of professional resources have affected emergency response at the same time as natural disasters (e.g. forest fires, tsunamis, storms, terror attacks and wars in the Middle East) leading to mass migration have intensified in recent decades. At the same time, frequent small scale accidents continue to occur on a regular basis both in urban and sparsely populated areas. As a result, emergency response actors (first responders) are often placed under severe pressure. An emerging trend in response to these challenges both in Sweden and internationally is to create cross sector forms of collaboration by combining alternative resources from various sectors. Such collaborations are relatively new and involve heterogeneous stakeholders. Therefore, the thesis objective is to explore IS related opportunities, challenges and needs aimed at supporting heterogeneous actors in emerging cross sector collaborations in emergency response in order to enable and facilitate future related IS development. To achieve this, a user centred approach was applied. A baseline study was performed followed by three case studies on co-location of actors, co-operative use of resources and semi-professionals as first responders by performing interviews, focus groups, participant observation, Future Workshops, an exercise and an after action review. The thesis is based on case study research and qualitative research methods. Sociotechnical systems theory, the sociotechnical ensemble view and network governance were used as the analytical framework As part of achieving the thesis objectives experiences from applying user participation in the context of cross sector collaboration are also presented as part of the results A context specific framework developed to systematise and explore various important aspects of cross sector collaboration in emergency response is also described The results of this thesis indicate that the needs for IS in cross sector collaborations vary from simple smartphone applications to manage alarms positioning and the dispatching of new resources to more sophisticated tools for sharing and viewing incident data The results also indicate that these collaborations have the potential e g resource redundancy pooled competencies to increase total capacity to improve Swedish emergency response if supported by adequate IS IT support The major challenges are organisational economic and juridical and the most prominent are ambiguities in actors tasks and responsibilities and how to prioritise between ordinary work and new first response tasks They must be addressed to enable certain IS functions e g information sharing and positioning of resources The results also highlight several institutional factors e g mutual interest between members collective problem solving secrecy aspects which are believed to play a key role in the success or failure of the collaborations and which must be addressed in the development of IS support The actors also have substantial basic needs for training e g fire extinguishing first aid and emergency supplies e g fire extinguishers healthcare kits Applying user participation also faced challenges the major one being the development of a future cross sector collaboration in a context that does not yet exist and involving stakeholders from resource strained organisations in doing so The stakeholders and sometimes also the primary end users are partly unknown and tasks are undefined As a response to these challenges a combination of activities based on multiple design groups scenario based Future Workshops focus groups the context specific framework a practical exercise and an after action review was provided The framework which was used to support data collection and user participation includes 15 dimensions each intended to represent important aspects of cross sector collaboration The thesis major contributions are the identified opportunities challenges and need as a sociotechnical ensemble and generated and from several studies thus being comparable The thesis more theoretical contributions is the combined application of the sociotechnical ensemble view and network governance where the studied collaboration forms are characterised as a hybrid form of networks and more traditional government mechanisms and where it is pointed out that network governance lacks explicit IS IT aspects In a wider perspective the research fields of IS and political science may cross fertilise each other when studying emerging cross sector collaboration in the public sector Identified user participation challenges relevant to the cross sector collaboration context suggestions on how they can be handled and the context specific framework are contributions that can be used in practical user centred IS development in similar contexts Informationssystem IS anvnds idag i de flesta verksamheter inom respons och rddningsomrdet t ex fr beslutsst d kommunikation informationsutbyte och resurspositionering Fel i systemen kan bidra till misslyckad samverkan vid rddningsinsatser som i sin tur kan riskera mnniskors liv och orsaka skador p milj och infrastruktur vid s v l

Avhandlingens främsta bidrag är de identifierade möjligheterna utmaningarna och behoven som en social ensemble och som genererade och jämförbara ur flera studier. Avhandlingens mer teoretiska bidrag är den kombinerade tillämpningen av sociotechnical ensemble och network governance där de studerade samverkansformerna lyfts fram som en blandform av nätverk och mer traditionella styrmekanismer och där det påpekas att network governance saknar explicita IS/IT-delar. I ett större sammanhang kan forskningsfältet IS och statsvetenskap kan komplettera varandra vid studier av framväxande tvärssektoriell samverkan i offentlig sektor. Relevanta utmaningar vid användarmedverkan i kontexten förslag på hur de kan hanteras och det kontextspecifika ramverket är bidrag som kan användas i praktisk användarcentrerad IS-utveckling i liknande sammanhang.

A wide ranging engagement with one of contemporary epistemology's most influential thinkers. Hilary Kornblith is one of the world's leading philosophers theorizing about knowledge and related issues. A key figure in the naturalized epistemology tradition, Kornblith integrates traditional empiricism with contemporary cognitive science, rejecting inward looking first person approaches in favor of a third person scientifically grounded perspective on mind and knowledge. Kornblith's contributions have reshaped debates about the nature and structure of knowledge, justification and epistemic normativity; he has challenged the legitimacy of conceptual analysis and the reliability of reflection and reasoning; besides charting and defending a mature and self-consciously naturalistic philosophical methodology. By exploring this terrain, Kornblith and His Critics offers an in-depth examination of some of the most unique and innovative work in the last 40 years of Anglophone epistemology. This volume brings together fifteen original essays by leading philosophers engaging with Kornblith's work, each written specifically for this collection. Organized into three main thematic sections: Knowledge and Justification, Reflection and Inference, and Naturalism and Methodology, the collection systematically traces and tests the implications of Kornblith's work across key debates. The volume also includes a substantial reply from Kornblith offering his own response to the critical challenges raised by the incisive contributions Kornblith and
