Do you agree or disagree with the following statements "Parents or older relatives should make essential decisions for their (15-18) years old teenage children?"

I do not agree with this statement mainly because teenagers in the age bracket 15-18 years are capable of making personal decisions. Parents and older relatives should only come in to offer advice and guidance but should not be allowed to have supreme authority over the decision that is to be made. It is because it is generally accepted that parents inherently have the interests of their children at heart. A good example is when a teenage girl falls pregnant.

Most parents and/or guardians will generally perceive this as an embarrassment to their families and, as such many of them would recommend abortions under the guise of protecting their daughter's education. Such radical decisions are sometimes made without seeking the opinion of the girl and the procedures are carried out using trickery. The resulting psychological trauma on the daughter as a result of the unconsented abortion may at times become too much to bear and cases of teenage suicide following such incidents have been reported.

The impregnated girl may also wish to procure an abortion, but sometimes based on the religious backgrounds of their parents, they end up being forced to carry the pregnancy to term and eventually stay at home raising a child that they were not ready to take care of. This leads to them becoming poor parents and, by extension breed irresponsible children.

Another example is when teenagers have to select the courses they would like to pursue in college. Most parents, and particularly those who have been immensely successful in their careers would like their children to follow in their footsteps. For instance, the teenage son of engineer parents may be very good in the sciences, and as such parents would like to see him go for training that will make him be just like Siminoff, 2008-05-13 Every year millions of parents shepherd their teens through the arduous college admissions process. They are bombarded with too much information and with destructive and pervasive college admissions myths. Tackling College Admissions: Sanity Strategy Success by Cheryl Paradis and Faren R. Siminoff provides just what the college admissions doctor needs: sanity, perspective, and common sense. The racecourse to college admissions is littered with obstacles, some anticipated, some unexpected. However, with knowledge and a little humor, virtually all teens can cross the finish line into that good fit college. Paradis and Siminoff offer a simple two-part approach to college admissions. Part I shows parents how to become effective coaches through employing self and teen assessment and discarding the college myths. Part II takes parents through the ins and outs of the college admissions process, alerting them to potential hurdles and teaching them effective, easy-to-implement strategies to overcome these. Children Today, 1980 Teens and the New Religious Landscape Jacob Stratman, 2018-09-12 How are teenagers' religious experiences shown in today's young adult literature? How do authors use religious texts and beliefs to add depth to characters, settings, and plots? How does YA fiction place itself in the larger conversation regarding religion? Modern YA fiction does not shy away from the dilemmas and anxieties teenagers face today. While many stories end with the protagonist in a state of flux, if not despair, some authors choose redemption or reconciliation. This collection of new essays explores these issues and more, with a focus on stories in which characters respond to a new, often shifting religious landscape in both realistic and fantastic worlds.
