

Laboratory Activity #1 — Student Laboratory Packet

Relationships and Biodiversity*A Laboratory Activity for the Living EnvironmentIntroduction

Botana curus is a valuable plant because it produces Curol, a compound used for treating certain kinds of cancer. Curol cannot be produced in the laboratory. Botana curus grows very slowly and is on the endangered species list, so its ability to provide Curol in large quantities is limited.

Species that are more closely related to Botana curus are more likely to produce the important substance Curol. Three similar plant species that are plentiful (X, Y, and Z) may be related to Botana curus. You will work as a researcher to:

- gather structural and molecular evidence to determine which plant species is most closely related to the hypothetical species, Botana curus
- use this evidence to decide which plant species is most likely to serve as a source of the important substance Curol

Safety

- You will need to wear goggles while conducting Tests 4 and 5.
- Do not eat or drink anything in the laboratory while doing this laboratory activity.

Important Note: Record all of your data and answers on these laboratory sheets. You will need to keep them for review before the Regents Examination. Later, you will need to transfer your answers to a separate Student Answer Packet. Your teacher will use the packet in grading your work, and the school will retain it as evidence of your completion of the laboratory requirement for the Living Environment Regents Examination.

Structural Evidence for Relationships

Perform the following tests and record your observations in Table 1 on page 8 of this packet. Use a hand lens or microscope as needed.

Test 1-Structural Characteristics of Plants

- Do not remove the plant samples from the plastic bags/cards.
- Compare the structural characteristics of the plant samples. Record your observations in Table 1 (see page 8).

Test 2-Structural Characteristics of Seeds

- Do not remove the seed samples from the plastic bags/cards.
- Compare the structural characteristics of the seed samples. Record your observations in Table 1.

"Relationships and Biodiversity" is a laboratory activity produced by the State Education Department for use in fulfilling part of the laboratory requirement for the Regents Examination in Living Environment. Reproducing any part of this laboratory activity by other than New York State school personnel is illegal.

Key Determinants of Biodiversity, Ecosystem Functioning and Restoration in Climate Change Sensitive Ecosystems Hui Zhang, Xiang Liu, Robert John, 2023-11-27 Human activities such as agriculture and mining have led to serious negative effects on biodiversity and important ecosystem services including biodiversity loss and climate change Thus it is important to quantify the key determinants of biodiversity ecosystem functioning and ecological restoration of degraded plant communities in climate change sensitive ecosystems i.e. subalpine and alpine meadow communities in Qinghai tropical rainforests and tropical mountains In this way effective management policy and methods can be developed to reduce the influence of climate change on these climate change sensitive ecosystems The aforementioned human activities continue to destroy and degrade plant communities and ecosystem functioning Climatic changes further exacerbate negative impacts and may trigger rapid loss of species precipitate decline and changes in the flows of ecosystem goods and services As the collective anthropogenic influence intensifies some ecosystems may be more sensitive than others to these changes

Ecosystems that contribute greatly to human well being through the delivery of biodiversity and ecosystem benefits should be the focus of particular concern. There are key knowledge gaps on the specific nature of anthropogenic impacts, species and ecosystem responses and possible management and mitigation measures. Comprehensive documentation of these aspects from highly sensitive regions and ecosystems is urgently needed, particularly at fine scales which is relevant for developing management and mitigation measures. Pathways such as ecological restoration can offset some of the impacts but even quantifying the impacts of observed and anticipated changes is far from adequate and other mitigation measures must be considered.

Biology Eric Strauss, Marilyn Lisowski, 2000 Key Topics in Conservation Biology 2 David W. Macdonald, Katherine J. Willis, 2013-02-06

Following the much acclaimed success of the first volume of Key Topics in Conservation Biology, this entirely new second volume addresses an innovative array of key topics in contemporary conservation biology. Written by an internationally renowned team of authors, Key Topics in Conservation Biology 2 adds to the still topical foundations laid in the first volume published in 2007 by exploring a further 25 cutting edge issues in modern biodiversity conservation including controversial subjects such as setting conservation priorities, balancing the focus on species and ecosystems and financial mechanisms to value biodiversity and pay for its conservation. Other chapters setting the framework for conservation address the sociology and philosophy of people's relation with Nature and its impact on health and such challenging practical issues as wildlife trade and conflict between people and carnivores. As a new development, this second volume of Key Topics includes chapters on major ecosystems such as forests, islands and both fresh and marine waters along with case studies of the conservation of major taxa: plants, butterflies, birds and mammals. A further selection of topics consider how to safeguard the future through monitoring, reserve planning, corridors and connectivity together with approaches to reintroduction and rewilding along with managing wildlife disease. A final chapter by the editors synthesises thinking on the relationship between biodiversity conservation and human development. Each topic is explored by a team of top international experts assembled to bring their own cross cutting knowledge to a penetrating synthesis of the issues from both theoretical and practical perspectives. The interdisciplinary nature of biodiversity conservation is reflected throughout the book. Each essay examines the fundamental principles of the topic, the methodologies involved and crucially the human dimension. In this way, Key Topics in Conservation Biology 2 like its sister volume, Key Topics in Conservation Biology, embraces issues from cutting edge ecological science to policy, environmental economics, governance, ethics and the practical issues of implementation. Key Topics in Conservation Biology 2 will like its sister volume be a valuable resource in universities and colleges, government departments and conservation agencies. It is aimed particularly at senior undergraduate and graduate students in conservation biology and wildlife management and wider ecological and environmental subjects and those taking Masters degrees in any field relevant to conservation and the environment. Conservation practitioners, policy makers and the wider general public eager to understand more about important environmental issues will also find this book
