Effective composition of seawater is determined by:

- 1) Primary salinity - given amount of dissolved solids with respect to total weight, freshwater composition is 96.5% composition
- 2) Source - water moving through salt balance from atmosphere, rivers, rain, and ice melting contributes, resulting in different salinities, but all derived from same
- 3) Biological processes - phytoplankton, zooplankton, bacteria, and other organisms contribute to the salinity of the water

Effective salinity and composition in water:

- 1) Salinity - mass percentage, composition
- 2) Composition - mass percentage, composition

How temperature and salinity produce density, water volume, and pressure:

Temperature differences cause water density:

- 1) Temperature - water density is higher at lower temperatures
- 2) Volume - water expands as it warms, so a given mass of water occupies more volume
- 3) Pressure - the temperature difference causes the water to expand, so the density decreases, so the water is less dense

Salinity differences cause water density:

- 1) Salinity - water density is higher at higher salinities
- 2) Volume - water contracts as it warms, so a given mass of water occupies less volume
- 3) Pressure - the salinity difference causes the water to contract, so the density increases, so the water is more dense
