Future Research

[illegible]

Abstract: This research is a descriptive qualitative study conducted in a public hospital in the city of São Paulo, Brazil. The study aimed to identify the factors that influence the adherence to the treatment of patients with chronic diseases. The data were collected through semi-structured interviews with 10 patients and 10 health professionals. The results showed that the main factors influencing adherence are the patient's knowledge about the disease, the perceived benefits of the treatment, and the social support. The study also identified barriers to adherence, such as lack of information, forgetfulness, and financial difficulties. The findings suggest the need for educational interventions and support for patients to improve adherence to treatment.
